SEFAS Code of Ethics

Members of SEFAS agree to the following Code of Ethics:

- That the exploration of archaeological sites is conducted in accordance with federal, state, county and local laws, and is conducted under the direct supervision of qualified personnel.
- That the results of exploration and research are documented.
- That ALL materials recovered from archaeological sites are turned over to the property owner after cleaning and cataloging by SEFAS.
- That members will not participate in the illegal trade of antiquities nor participate in exploration which could result in illegal trade.
- That the appropriate authorities are informed of threats to, or plunder of, archaeological sites if discovered by a member.
- That members will participate in expanding the public's knowledge of Florida's historical and archaeological heritage.
