

VERONICA BRINSON

I didn't have the money to win but I had the fortitude to try. I became the first woman and minority to formally seek this position via election without first being appointed. I have always wanted to serve on Georgia Supreme Court.

I experienced a lot of obstacles and discouragement leading up to qualifying and throughout the process. I am humbly proud of the effort I made with less than $5,000.00 (five thousand) to run this Statewide race and with no transportation of my own. I sacrificed funds for a much needed car to invest in my future as a judge. I paid my own qualifying fee of $5,373.36.

A lot has occurred over the last ten years to limit my ability to earn the type of living I deserved and to pursue opportunities I desire, I hope such will change soon. I dedicate my efforts to the memory of my deceased mother and father.

I made history by formally pursing this effort via election as a woman and minority without first being appointed; I did not win. I tried.

I desired to better Georgia Supreme Court via my experiences and diversity
