Docu+'s August, Again Secures KOCCA Post-Production Funding Ahead of Marché du Film Market Debut

Seoul, South Korea — April 8, 2026— Docu+ announces that its feature documentary August, Again has been selected for post-production funding by the Korea Creative Content Agency, positioning the film for international market exposure at the upcoming Marché du Film in Cannes.

Directed by Danny Kim, who has also been selected as part of the official Korean delegation to the Marché du Film Producers Network, August, Again will be introduced to global buyers, distributors, and co-production partners during the market.

Timed with the 80th anniversary of the atomic bombings, August, Again follows Han Jeongsun, a second-generation Korean atomic bomb survivor, uncovering the overlooked truth that nearly 10% of the victims were Korean. The film blends intimate character-driven storytelling with urgent historical inquiry, positioning it strongly within the global impact documentary landscape.

The KOCCA post-production fund will support the film's final edit, sound design, and delivery, ensuring the project is market-ready for festival premieres and international sales.

"With KOCCA's support, we are entering the market at a critical moment," said Danny Kim. "Bringing August, Again to Cannes allows us to connect with partners who understand the global resonance of this story—from broadcasters to distributors seeking powerful, socially driven documentaries."

At Marché du Film, Docu+ will actively seek:

- International sales agents and distributors
- Festival premiere partners
- Impact and outreach collaborators
- Broadcast and streaming platforms

Produced by Docu+, a global impact studio dedicated to elevating Korean stories for international audiences, August, Again continues to build momentum following its recognition across key industry platforms.

The selection by Korea Creative Content Agency marks a significant milestone as the film moves into its final stage and prepares to engage the global marketplace in Cannes.
