What is Workforce Reprogramming?

For years, companies focussed on management skills and process training for employee development, team scaling, productivity, and alignment to the business strategy. Every business almost always focused on the tangible skillset and leadership training as talent development interventions. But what corporations often overlook is that human beings are highly governed by their overall human abilities that stay hidden or intangible in their mindset, behaviors and actions.

Workforce Reprogramming is a business healing and talent enhancement program combining human behavioral scientific power techniques and contemporary management methods that engages both conscious and subconscious mindset and abilities to reprogram the existing talent pool to tap into their highest abilities, resolve conflicts or issues that thwart growth, improve communications, think and perform with clarity, build high performing teams and better camaraderie and improve performance.

One huge advantage of this toolkit is that it is not system driven or technology dependent. Thus changing technical innovations and practices will not impact its usage, but the practical implementation of these tools will aid workforce performance whether driven by technology or otherwise.

What makes reprogramming powerful?

Human beings are blessed with many abilities that they don't realise lies within them. With the advent of technology, machines and artificial intelligence, human beings have become so overtly dependent on tech driven solutions that they are gradually becoming more unaware of their real human abilities and powers.

The human performance reprogramming helps the learners to tap into the very powerful inner abilities and resources that can help resolve problems, clear blocks, heal issues within business and pave ways for progress.

The human performance reprogramming course is a very powerful toolkit because it enables an individual to become aware, tap into and utilize their inner abilities and deal with difficult situations and communications even without direct interaction and intervention. Designed on age old principles of subconscious programming and mind engineering, this program teaches highly effective tools that leaders can utilize when dealing with difficult people, situations or projects - to create solutions and progress pathways where logical tangible circumstances show roadblocks.

This method is designed on human mind and behavior principles and despite its high effectiveness, it was kept well hidden among under 1% of corporations who are all industry leaders.

What to expect in a Reprogramming Masterclass?

If you are used to typical corporate trainings loaded with powerpoints, technology and AI driven presentations and graphics to create high tech aesthetic impressions, then a Reprogramming Masterclass will take you for a surprise.

This masterclass is led by in-person or virtual instructor in a series of 90-120 mins sessions where the facilitator will lead the master group through mindset, action and behaviour shifting exercises, through guided mental tools and hand written journal practices for programing reticular activating system to create mindset, behavior, action alignment with goals and results.

The mastergroup participants will experience a session that will engage their senses and cognitive abilities and uncover latent abilities within themselves that they may have not realised before. This life changing experiences opens up tools and techniques that can be responsibly used for self empowerment and professional development utilizing the universal energies and open channels of intuitive transformations that are not known or taught in corporations. These highly effective tools can create life changing experience and shifts and open up immense growth. They can be effectively used deal with conflicts, communication challenges or difficult scenarios where tangible solutions often fall short.

FAQ

How do I know if this program is the right fit?

Organizations that aim to improve people, process or performance results will find this beneficial. Often times business results are not just impacted by the Actions taken but due to the Mindset and Behavior alignment that comprises nearly 80% of the business's internal energies and drives output. If these three factors are not aligned business results and employee experience will be affected. If you are a business leader who sees the value in performance enhancement, this program is for your people.

What causes these blocks?

Result blocks and barriers can be caused by various things namely - team members not in sync, underlying energies are not favourable, stress, conflicts or negative vibrations and mindset that are blocking progress, internal workplace politics or unfavourable interpersonal relations at work, ego, tension or even unresolved personal issues impacting the performance of individuals. These issues create a negative work frequency that shows up as talent loss, money loss or unnecessary expenses, thwarted growth or low motivation.

How can workforce reprogramming remove these blocks and open pathways for results?

Workforce reprogramming is a deep level business healing and talent enhancement methodology. It enables the workforce to work with root causes, through inner work, mindset and workplace healing tools that improves the environment, opens pathways for communication, creates pathways for growth and improvement and clearing unfavourable situations and vibrations.
