Background: Adult relationships are often like a poker game. No one is ever completely honest. Some things you show, some things you hide. There're bluffing, aggressive moves, checks, deception, folding. Sometimes you're all in, other times you fold and cut your losses, and even then don't show why. People hold back and don't put all their cards on the table, but eventually they are revealed anyway. Sometimes you win, sometimes you lose, and sometimes you walk away.

And sometimes you feel like you're playing by yourself.

Bridge

Down and dirty
Read 'em and weep
You might be playing for fun
But this game's for keeps

I know you'll never call
I know all your subtle tells
You'll check and then fold
When your hand goes to hell

Verse

So that's it, you're gonna fold
I guess I wasn't in the cards
It's easier to walk away
When the hand gets too hard

I was ready to double down but
You blew down my house of cards
You're the queen of diamonds
That broke this king of hearts

Chorus

You can take it to the bank
I ain't going anywhere
I'm waiting on the turn
But you keep playing solitaire

You're too busy counting cards
While I'm sitting on two pair
You keep me waiting on the turn
