Senior Speech Class Enjoys Storytelling

Speeches to inform, persuade, and entertain were just a few of the different types of speeches given by the classes. The topics were chosen by the students. In the advanced speech classes, the students told personal anecdotes to their classmates in order to reveal their true personalities. The advanced speech class members also visited the elementary classes to read them stories.

Art Students Paint Murals

The Art I class created various projects in many areas of art. They worked with color schemes, lettering, perspective drawings, screen printing, portraits, watercolor paintings, latch hook rugs, and mirror printing. In Art II the students had less projects with more time to spend on detail. Their projects included enameling on copper, acrylic painting, plaster molds, calligraphy, photo screen prints, and using the potter's wheel. Independent study was how the Art III class was based. The students were given a list of options from which to choose.

All of the art classes worked on one big project together — they painted Disney characters on the walls of the elementary school and a mural in the cafeteria. Several of the students entered the Scholastic Arts Art Contest in South Bend. They also took a field trip to the Snite Art Museum at Notre Dame, and then they traveled to the Century Center to view the Scholastic Arts Contest where they found that Mike Mechling's entry had won an award. Students also entered projects in the St. Francis College Contest in Ft. Wayne. At this contest, Jennifer Trump won an award. The Art Department also sponsored a model car contest.

Buenos Dias

Upper Right — Spanish I students volunteer the answers to questions that Senor Levi asks.

Lower Right — Jodi Shivers works dilligently to achieve an A on her test.

Buenos Dias!! This and many other phrases were learned by the Spanish I class this year. They also attended a party at Mr. Levi's house where they made and ate tacos.

The French I class also had a party hosted by Mr. Levi where they prepared and ate French crepes.

The advanced Spanish and French classes went out to dinner at restaurants that served Spanish and French foods. The foreign language classes had a guest speaker from The Youth for Understanding come to talk to them about being a foreign exchange student.

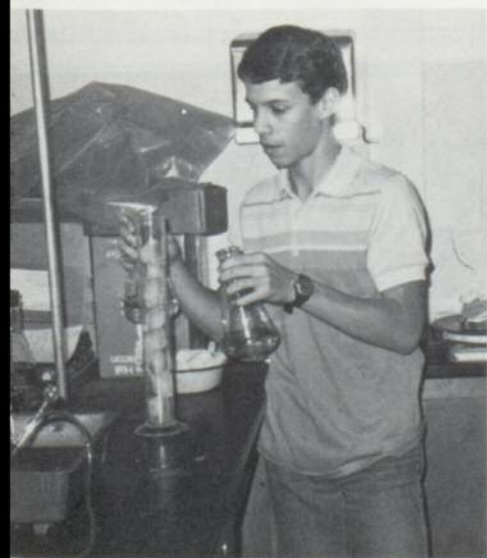

Science Students Apply Knowledge In Labs

Center — Brian Dille and Lee Leffert work on their chromosome ladders.

Lower Right — Mr. Redinger helps Kelly Hanley and Leah Eley with their labs.

This year the biology students studied human anatomy and the origin of man in addition to participating in numerous labs in which they dissected worms and live frogs. Atoms, molecules, elements, and electrons were among the many topics discussed in chemistry class. The physics class studied the movement of objects and the forces that are placed upon them. All three classes took a field trip to a laser show in Michigan. The chemistry and physics classes also took an all-day field trip.

Be Fit For Life

Learning to be physically fit and active in sports for life was the main educational goal of physical education classes this year. Soccer, football, archery, speedball, floor hockey, basketball, softball, volleyball, gymnastics, weight lifting, badminton, track, croquet, tennis, golf, and archery were among the sports covered in physical education classes this year. The boys also participated in wrestling, and the girls did aerobics. They made up aerobic routines to music of their choice, were videotaped, and were then graded by their peers. Also during the aerobics sessions, the class talked about heart rates, the best way to lose weight, how to be aerobically fit, and how your body uses oxygen.

Lower Right — The guys have a lot of fun playing floor hockey.

Term Papers Challenge English Students

Grammar lessons, literature reading, book reports, and term papers were all part of a day's work in the English classes this year. The Freshmen classes read To Kill A Mockingbird and Romeo and Juliet along with studying the many gods and goddesses of Greek mythology. The Sophomore classes wrote term papers on careers and read A Light in the Forest, Animal Farm, and Julius Caesar. Along with writing term papers on the topic of their choices, the Juniors studied the novels — Alas, Babylon and Huckleberry Finn. The Senior literature class read British and Greek literature and were then tested with five essay exams over these books. Finally, the Senior composition class learned good paragraph structure and wrote themes. Then they applied what they had learned in their term papers for which they traveled to IUSB to do their research.

Upper Right — Randy Stutler checks out the assignment he just received.

Center — Chris McLaughlin, Scott Shirk, and Matt Krom work on their term papers in the library.

Drafting Students Develop Egg Protection System

This year the woods students chose projects they wanted to complete. They chose articles such as lamps, bowls, desks, book shelves, baseball bats, entertainment centers, TV Stands, clocks, tables, and cutting boards.

Diagrams, floor plans, and blue prints were among the many technical drawings drafted by the drafting classes. They also had a project to develop a system to protect an egg from breaking after being thrown into the air.

In metals class, the students made boxes and dust pans out of sheet metal. They also melted aluminum to make pours and made screw-drivers and chisels with the forge.

Lower Right — Rob Hurford shows us he table he made in shop class.

Students Visit Area Farms

This year the horticulture class used the equipment in the drafting room to make landscape drawings for houses. Some of their drawings were sent to the state contest. In livestock production class, the students set up their own farms on paper and managed them. They also dealt with raising livestock. The Vocational Agriculture I class visited the Blanch Farm to see sheep operations and pure-bred swine operations. At the Heckaman Farm, they saw dairy parlor operations, and at the McCay Farm they saw dairy sanitation operations. At the Lynn Leffert Farm, the students saw a farrow to finish hog operations and beef cattle production.

During National FFA Week, the Ag classes held McDonald's Farm Day. Some of the students brought in farm and wild animals and displayed them in pens. The elementary classes visited the Ag Department to view the animals.

Remember To "Save" Data

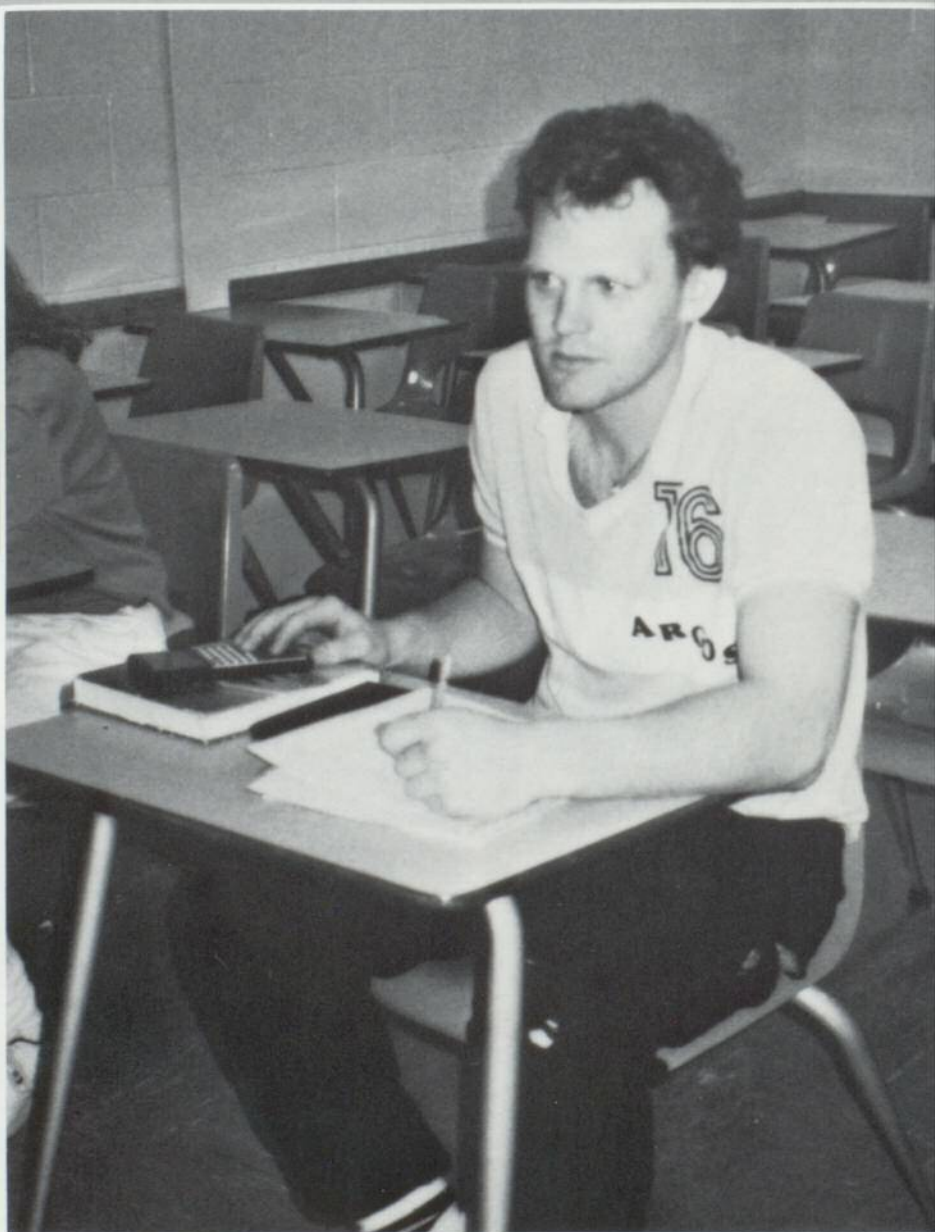

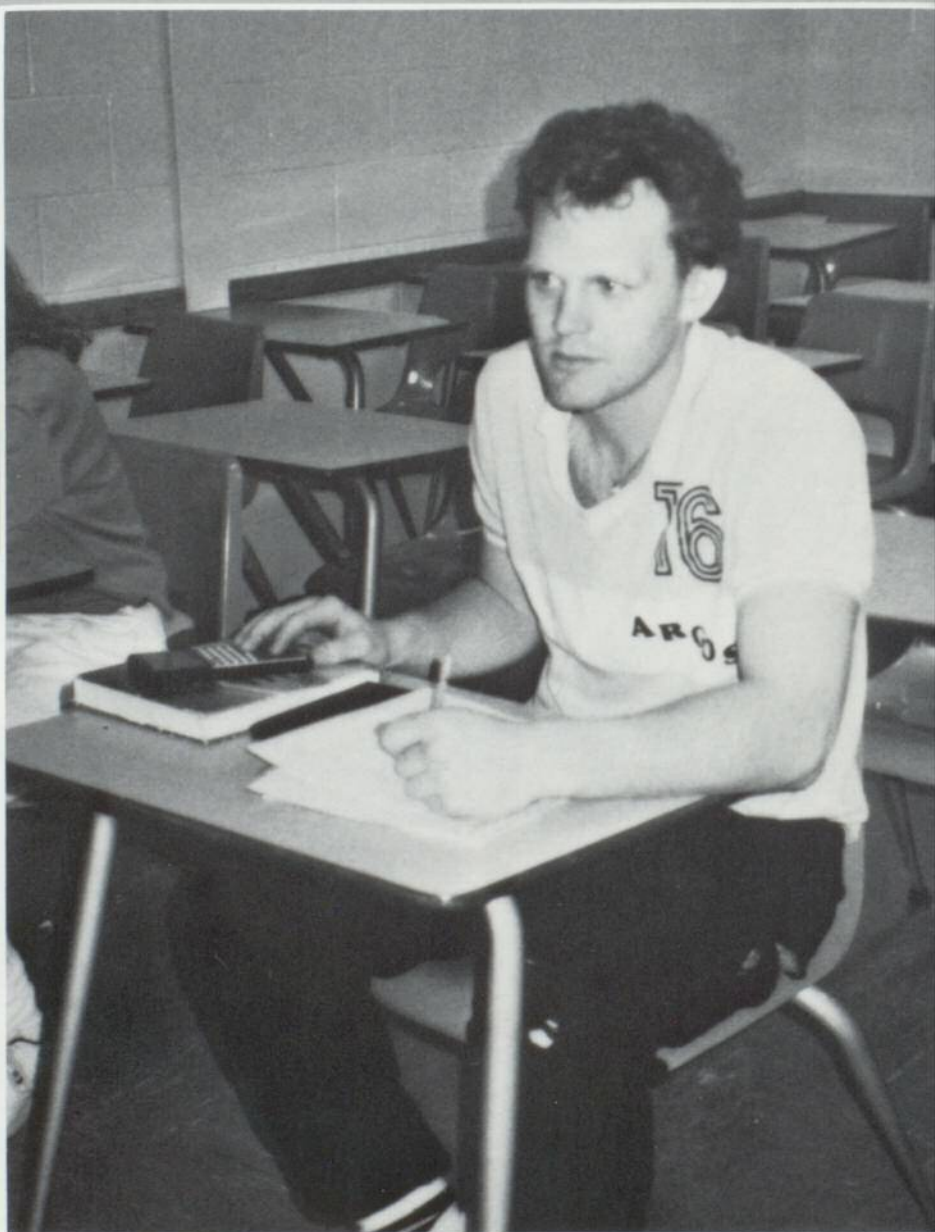

Computer literacy was covered during the first semester of computer class this year. The students "got to know" the computer by learning the history and parts of the computer. They also were introduced to the uses of computers in music, business, medicine, and many of the Federal agencies.

The second semester class involved computer programming. The students learned how to give the computer direct instructions. They wrote programs using simple loops, graphics, sound, and animation. They also learned how to use text files to store lists of information on a disk.

Students Grasp Complex Equations

Students reviewing and applying basic mathematical functions to practical situations were found in general math this year. This equation — $3x + 2 = 8$ — was among many other equations that were presented to the Algebra I class. The students applied what they learned to solve story problems. If lines, planes, and points were what you were looking for, they could have been found in Geometry class. The students in this class worked with theorems, formulas, equations, and proofs. Algebra II students worked with complex equations, logarithms, and story problems. They were also introduced to trigonometry. The number theory, trigonometry, and being introduced to calculus were among the many difficult tasks presented by Mr. Couch to his Senior math students.

Cooking Class Holds Pie Baking Contest

Sewing and cooking were not all that the Home Economics classes did. The Sophomore classes held child development sessions in which parents brought in their children for an hour. This class also visited the Rochester Hospital Maternity Ward.

The Freshmen and Junior classes visited fabric stores in South Bend to study different types and styles of cloth. This year the foods classes held a pie baking contest which turned out to be a lot of fun for the students. The teachers got to sample their creations.

Lower Left — Amy Sechrist and Hazel Campbell discuss their projects and how soon they will have them finished.

Lower Right — The girls in Home Economics sample their pie to see if they made it correctly.

Students spent at least an hour a day in study hall all year long. Some of them made good use of their time and worked on their assignments or studied for a test. Others read books and magazines for enjoyment.

“Newsweek” Is Text For Civics

Current events, civics, government, economics, World, and U.S. History were the courses offered to students at Argos. The classes watched film and videos about what they were studying, and speakers came in and talked to the classes. The current events class studied from “Newsweek” magazine and the “Channel 16 News Review.” The government and economics classes were encouraged to register and vote by the town clerk, Ken Powell.

Upper right — David Mullaney waits with anticipation for economics class to begin.

In 1985, he received an Administrative Endorsement from Indiana State. He and his wife Jan have two children — Tyler who is five and Zachary who is one. Mr. Chittum served as Assistant Principal at Triton High School last year and taught industrial arts at Argos from 1975 to 1985.

The project includes a 9,838 square foot classroom addition and renovation of existing K-12 building components to include: Window wall replacement, new classroom ceilings and lighting, installation of air-conditioning in the High School Office area, and a complete renovation of the heating system including installing two new boilers. Junior-Senior High Gym lighting was added to the project through a change order.

The new classrooms have been designed for Kindergarten, Readiness, and Special Education. The Elementary Administration Office Complex will also be located in the new area.

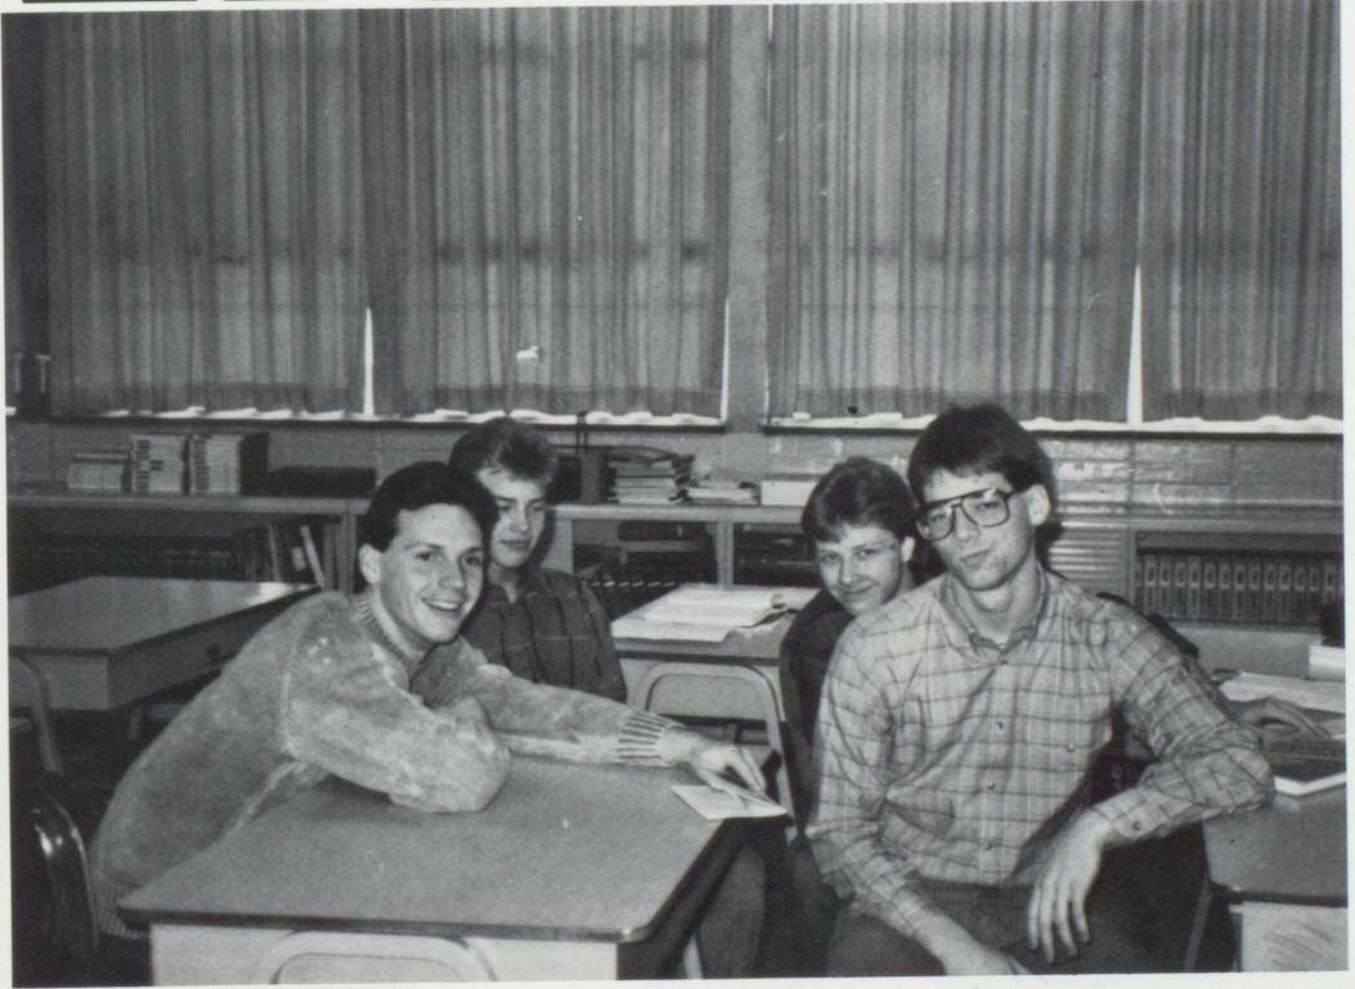

The estimated cost of the project when complete is $1,768,844 including new furniture for the new classrooms and office area. The completion date of the project was targeted for August of 1988.

NHS Conducts Rock-A-Thon

Eight new members were inducted into the high school National Honor Society this year. To become a member of National Honor Society, a student must have and maintain a minimum academic average of B. The students must also have good character, exhibit good service, and provide good leadership. Students have to be nominated by the faculty and then chosen by a committee of teachers, the guidance counselor, and the principal. This year the National Honor Society held a Rock-a-Thon for twelve hours. The money earned went to help Anne Stockberger. The members also raked leaves for the elderly residents of Argos. One of the goals of the Council is to raise money for school improvements. The members worked as escorts at the Parent Teacher Conferences.

The Newspaper Staff published the Dragon's Roar every six weeks. The newspaper was set up on a new Apple computer. The editors of the paper were Teri Harley, Cheryl Ellis, Debbie Trump, Tammy Ellis, and Shawn Thompson. There were 55 girls in Sunshine Society this year. They started the year with a Food Drive Dance which provided food for twelve needy families. They had $1500 profit from their candy sale. This money was partly used to buy decorations for a very successful Sunshine Dance. Some of the profit was sent as a donation to Riley Children's Hospital.

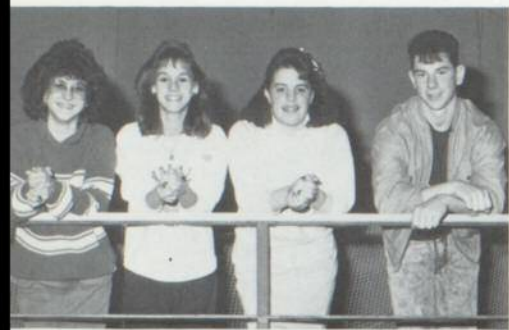

The Library staff shelve books, check out books and magazines for other students, and help with bulletin boards. The Staff enjoyed an annual Christmas party at Miss Jackson's home. The Office girls answered the phone, distributed the mail, greeted parents, recorded daily attendance, and did other jobs for Mr. Chittum, Mrs. Redinger, Mr. Miller, and Mrs. Edmonds. The Kitchen Helpers served food and washed dishes.

FCA Goes On Retreat

The Student Council was responsible for Homecoming Activities and for sponsoring a dance after the Homecoming game. This organization also scheduled our assemblies. FHA sponsored the MORP dance in February. Many of the club members went on a field trip to Chicago where they went shopping in the downtown Loop and in Chinatown. The Fellowship of Christian Athletes met every Wednesday morning of the school year to listen to guest speakers, to eat breakfast, and for fellowship. They went on a retreat to Marshall, Indiana, during spring break. The Future Educators cooked a delicious breakfast for the teachers on Teacher Work Day at semester break. They sponsored the Coat Check at all of the basketball games.

were sponsored by Ronda Calhoun. The Flags performed during parades and at home games. They practiced twice a week. The seven Flag members worked together to make up their own routines.
The Swing Choir performed at various churches, at the Plymouth Junior Miss Contest, and for the Christmas Special on Channel 34. They practiced five or six times before every performance. They were sponsored by Tami Brock.

Are Friends Forever

Friends are the best part of life. Through every day, every activity, The good times and the bad times, They support you. They dream your dreams and laugh at your jokes although they may not be funny. Just because we're leaving this school, Does this mean that we're leaving our friends?

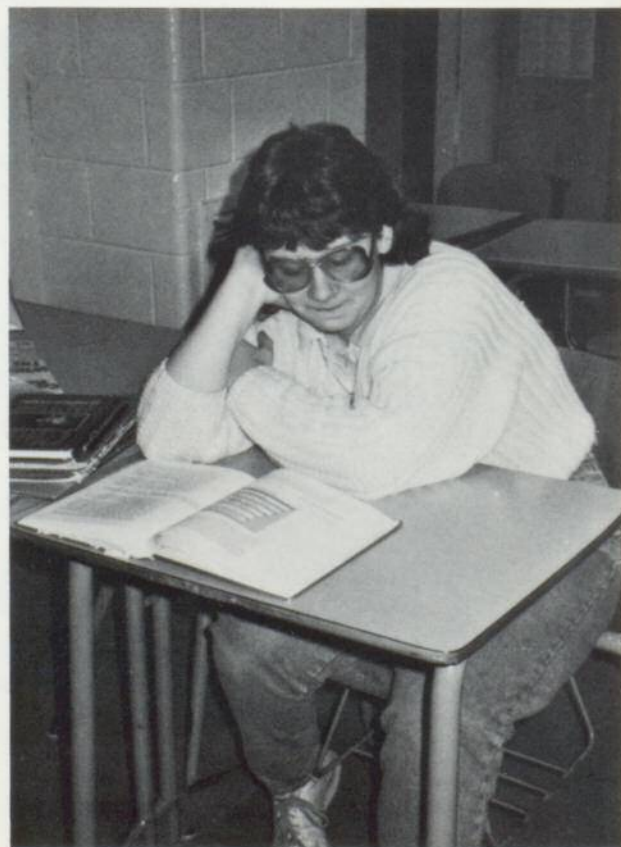

— Never

The memories that we've shared will always exist.

Whether we believe it or not, a part of each of us will always remain at Argos High School and with our friends.

We all have made a difference. No matter where we go and what we do, Our friends will always be with us. Because friends are friends forever . . .
