

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

JOSEPH ANDREW (KELLY) CAMPBELL

CAMPBELL ANCESTRY—CAMPBELL FAMILY

JOSEPH ANDREW KELLY CAMPBELL, born in Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, February 27, 1832, the fifth child of John and Mary Helen Kelly Campbell, traces his ancestry to John Campbell, of Scotland, who came to America about 1750; to James and Mary Poak, who settled in Buffalo Valley, Pennsylvania, in 1768, and to John Kelly, of Ireland, who arrived in America in 1723.

Soon after he was born his parents moved to Williamsport, Pennsylvania, where his boyhood was spent and he received his education. Upon leaving school he learned the trade of pattern maker. When twenty-one years of age, having been offered more remunerative employment in Philadelphia, he moved to the Frankford District of that city, and there spent the remainder of his days.

He soon entered actively into the political life of the community, and for a number of years was a member of the Democratic Ward Executive Committee. On the 22d of March, 1868, he received the appointment of Miscellaneous Clerk in the office of the City Treasurer, under Joseph N. Piersol, who had been elected to that office in October, 1867. Joseph Andrew Campbell (as he preferred to be known) held this position for several years, giving a bond for $5,000, which was signed by himself, Francis Deal and John Cocker. In 1870 he was nominated, on the Democratic ticket, for State Representative from the Seventeenth Legislative District of Pennsylvania, and in October of that year was elected, the Board of Judges, after its meeting on Tuesday, October 11, 1870, sending him official notice of his election.

From the time of his arrival in Philadelphia he worshipped at The Presbyterian Church of Frankford, where he met ELIZA EDITH DEAL, who, on July 13, 1856, became his wife. Eliza Edith Deal was the daughter of John and Elizabeth Davis Vandegrift Deal, and traces her ancestry to John Diel, of Germany, who came to America in 1688; to Jacob Meyer, of Germany, who arrived in 1750, and to Daniel and Ann Evans Davis, of Wales, who settled in Philadelphia in 1803. Joseph Andrew Campbell and Eliza Edith Deal were married by William H. Butler, an Alderman of the City of Philadelphia, who made the following record of the ceremony:

This is to certify that on the Thirteenth Day of July in the Year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty-six before me the Subscriber, one of the Aldermen in and for the City of Philadelphia, Joseph A. Campbell and Eliza E. Deal were joined in marriage, they declaring themselves clear of all engagements, and taking each other for Husband and Wife, according to law.

In Witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal the day and year above written.

William H. Butler, Alderman.

In the latter part of 1870, Joseph Andrew Campbell was stricken with an illness which caused his death on January 11, 1871, before he was able to take his seat as a member of the Pennsylvania State Legislature to which he had been elected. Resolutions of sympathy were sent to the family by the Democratic Ward Executive Committee and by the several organizations of which he was a member.

Joseph Andrew Campbell was a Mason, being a member of Frankford Lodge, No. 292, Free and Accepted Masons of Pennsylvania, and of Hand and Hand Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

Eliza Edith Deal Campbell survived her husband less than a year, dying December 21, 1871.

The children of Joseph Andrew and Eliza Edith Deal Campbell were: John Deal Kelly, Ernest Linwood, David Frank, Joseph Andrew, Mary Helen and Emma Edith Campbell.

DEAL (DIEL) ANCESTRY—DEAL FAMILY

After the settlement of Pennsylvania by the Quakers, William Penn made known to the world that anyone settling there could worship God according to the dictates of conscience without interference or molestation. This news almost immediately started emigration to the new country. Among the earliest of the German emigrants to arrive was one JOHN DIEL, as the name was then spelled, who brought with him his wife and his son, PETER. They arrived in America in 1688, landing in Philadelphia, and made that city their future home. They settled in that portion of the city known as Nicetown, where the men engaged in farming.

PETER DIEL married in 1709, and had a son born in 1711, who was named FRANCIS. In 1745 Francis Diel married Katrina Butz, born in 1721, and for a time resided with his parents. In 1762, Francis Diel purchased from William Shippen a piece of land situated at Nicetown Lane and Townshipline Road, now known as Hunting Park and Wissahickon Avenues. Here he built his home, which later was called the Abbey Inn. In 1771 he purchased another piece of ground from William Shippen and wife, and in 1773 bought an adjoining piece from Tench and Anne Francis, making his holdings about one and three-quarters acres. The Inn was situated at the corner of the property, and here he lived with his family until his untimely death. On October 17, 1777, shortly before the Battle of Germantown, while standing inoffensively in the doorway of his residence, Francis Diel was wantonly shot and killed by an unknown British soldier.

Francis Diel died intestate, and owing to the stress of Revolutionary times, his widow, Katrina, did not take out Letters of Administration on his estate until December 29, 1780, more than three years after his death. During the period of administration the eldest son, John and his wife conveyed their interest to the mother. Finally a family agreement was reached whereby the widow retained the entire estate during her lifetime.

Katrina Butz Diel died in Philadelphia on May 4, 1796, and disposed of the estate by will. This instrument is a model of brevity, but sets forth her wishes very clearly:

“In the name of God Amen. I, Catherine Deal, of the Northern Liberties and County of Philadelphia, being of perfect sound disposing mind, memory and understanding thanks be to the Almighty God therefore do hereby make my last Will and Testament in manner following. And first I order that all my just debts and funeral expenses be well and truly paid and in order thereto I empower my two sons Samuel Deal and Francis Deal to sell such of my movables as can be spared.

“Item: I give and bequeath to the children of my son John deceased one share of my estate between them and no more.

“Item: To my daughter Peggy I give and bequeath one share & a Coat & all my wearing apparel—to my son Peter Deal I give and bequeath one share. To my son Daniel Deal I give and bequeath one share. To my son Samuel Deal I give and bequeath one share & a bed & five pounds in cash and to my son Francis Deal I give and bequeath one share & my own Bed and I do hereby empower my Executors hereinafter named to dispose of my effects real & personal (excepting the personal Property above given & bequeathed) and empower them or either of the survivor of them to take, execute & acknowledge a Deed or Deeds in fee simple to the Purchaser or Purchasers thereof.

“Lastly I nominate constitute & appoint my two sons Samuel Deal and Francis Deal Executors of this my last Will and Testament hereby revoking any Will & Testament before this made.

“In witness whereof I have hereunto set my Hand and Seal this fourth day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ninety-one.

“Katrina Diel” (seal).

“Proved 11 July, 1796.

“Registered in Will Book X page 461,” &c.

The children of Francis and Katrina Butz Diel were: John, Peter, Daniel, Samuel, Francis and Margareta Diel. The sons changed the spelling of the name from “Diel” to “Deal.” They all learned the butcher’s trade and lived in the Germantown and Nicetown Districts, with the exception of John, who moved to the Frankford District of Philadelphia, where he died.

JOHN DEAL, eldest son of Francis and Katharine Butz Diel, was born in Nicetown, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1746. In 1770 he married Elizabeth, daughter of Jacob and Catharine Ehel Gardener, who was born in 1750. Shortly after his marriage he moved to Frankford, in Oxford Township, where he was engaged in the trade of butcher.

A few years after settling in Frankford, on January 28, 1785, John Deal purchased from the children of one Isaac Leech, tanner, of Cheltenham Township, 3 acres 100 perches of land in Oxford Township, situated on Frankford Mill Creek and Robert Adams Road, for £200, the land remaining in the possession of the family until 1840.

On June 13, 1777, the General Assembly formulated the following Oath of Allegiance and Fidelity to the State of Pennsylvania:

“I do swear that I renounce and refuse all allegiance to George III, King of Great Britain, his heirs and successors: and that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as a free and independent state; and that I will not at any time do, or cause to be done, any manner or thing that will be prejudicial or injurious to the freedom and independence thereof as declared by Congress; and also that I will discover and make known to some one Justice of the Peace of the said State, all treasons or traitorous conspiracies which I may know, or hereinafter shall know to be formed against this or any of the United States of America."

To this oath, John Deal, with others, subscribed on August 2, 1779, and thereafter espoused the patriotic cause in the War of the Revolution.

John Deal died in the year 1788, his widow, Elizabeth Gardener Deal, surviving him until June 5, 1836, when she died at the advanced age of 86.

The children of John and Elizabeth Gardener Deal were:

Catharine, born 1770; died 1773;

Jacob, born February 2, 1772; married Edith Myers, February 14, 1799; died June 3, 1838;

Susannah, born December 23, 1777; married Jacob Harper; died May 14, 1866.

The fifth generation of the Deal family in America is traced through the lives of Jacob Deal and his sister, Susannah Deal.

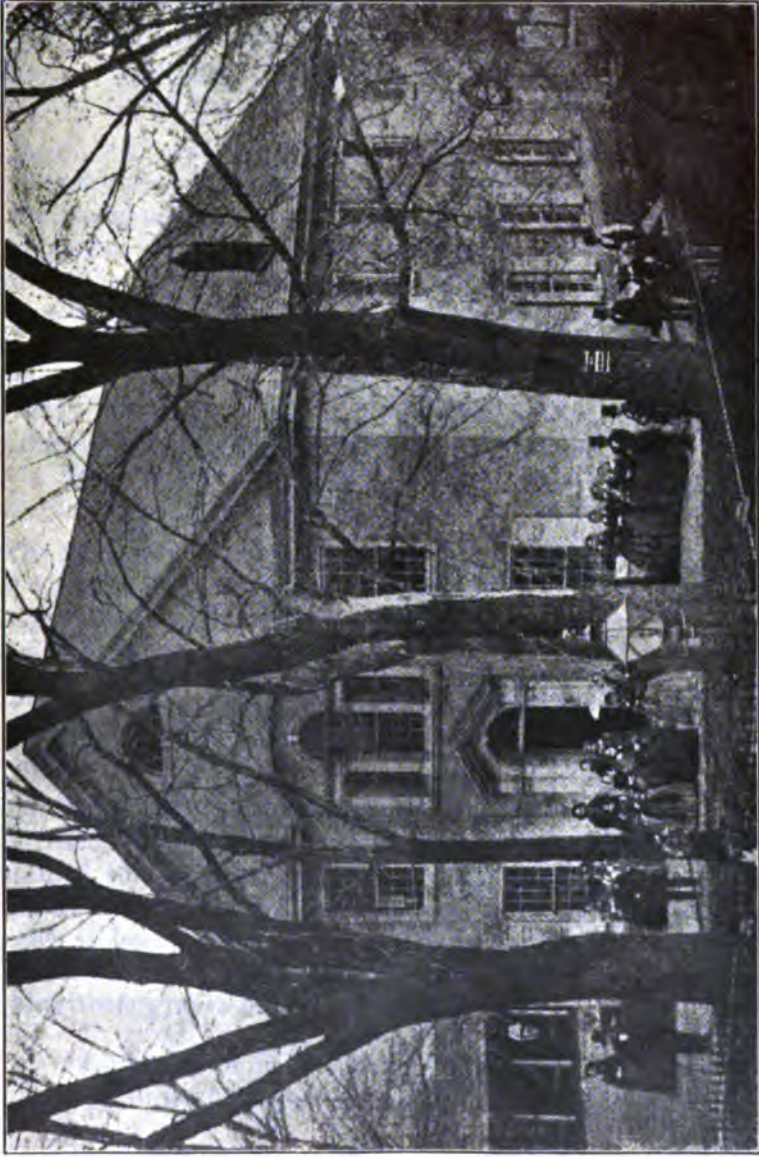

JACOB DEAL, second child of John and Elizabeth Gardener Deal, was born in the Frankford District of Philadelphia on February 2, 1772, where he lived and was educated. He learned the trade of stone mason and was engaged in that occupation until his death. He laid the foundations of many of the more important buildings in Philadelphia, particularly those in the neighborhood of Frankford.

Early in life he became a member of the German Reformed Church of Frankford, and was made one of the deacons of the Church in 1802, when he was but thirty years of age.

It was here that he met Edith Myers, born March 17, 1778, daughter of Jacob Meyer, as the name was then spelled, whom he married on February 14, 1799. Jacob Meyer was a resident of Milltown, Cheltenham Township, Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, and one of the founders of the Frankford Church.

Jacob Deal, with Jacob Meyer and others, was among the first to recognize the changed conditions in Frankford growing out of the increasing number of English and Scotch-Irish people who were making their homes in the community, and advocated the change from the German Reformed to the Presbyterian form of worship. In 1806 they petitioned for admission into the Presbyterian Church and upon being admitted, changed the name of the church to The Presbyterian Church of Frankford, which name it has retained to this day. In 1807 Jacob Deal was among those who requested that the congregation be supplied with a minister for every Sabbath, and in 1809 the Reverend John W. Doak was appointed minister of the church by the Presbytery.

On the erection of the second church building, in 1809, Jacob Deal built all the stone work, the records of the church showing that at the end of the year there was owing to him the sum of thirty-three dollars.

For the greater part of his lifetime Jacob Deal was one of the trustees of the church, he and his family being regular in their attendance.

On June 5, 1836, Elizabeth Gardener Deal (mother of Jacob Deal) died in her eighty-seventh year. His wife, Edith Myers Deal, died June 1, 1837, and he died June 30, 1838, at the age of sixty-six. He was the grandfather of Eliza Edith Deal whose ancestry is here being traced. Jacob Deal, his wife and mother are buried in the cemetery adjoining the Church. The stones marking their graves bear the inscriptions:

“In Memory of Jacob Deal, who departed this life June 30, 1838, in the 66th year of his age. Also Edith his wife, who departed this life June 1, 1837, in the 60th year of her age. Also inscribed to the memory of Myers Deal, their son, who died at Grand Coteau, La., October 11, 1837, aged 30 years, 8 months.

“In Memory of Elizabeth Deal who departed this life June 5, 1836 in the 87th year of her age.”

The will of Jacob Deal, proved June 10-16, 1838, was as follows:

“Be it remembered that I Jacob Deal of the Borough of Frankford in the County of Philadelphia, Mason, being weak in body but of sound mind memory and understanding do make and publish this my last will in manner following to wit.

“First. It is my will and I do order that all my just debts and funeral expenses be duly paid and satisfied as soon as conveniently can be after my decease by my Executrix and Executor hereinafter named.

“Item. I give and bequeath unto my wife Edith all the use and income of my Estate Real and Personal during her natural life. And after her decease I give, bequeath and devise all my estate of whatever kind it may be unto my children share and share alike agreeably to the Laws of Pennsylvania relating to Intestates' Estates.

“Item. It is my will and I do order and request that the income derived from my father's estate be applied toward the maintenance of my mother during her natural life anything hereinbefore contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

“And lastly. I nominate constitute and appoint my wife, Edith, Executrix and my son, John Deal, Executor of this my last will hereby revoking all other wills, legacies and bequests by me heretofore made and declare this and no other to be my last will and Testament.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this eighteenth day of August in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five.

"Jacob Deal" (Seal)

"Registered in Will Book No. 13, page 243."

The children of Jacob and Edith Myers Deal were: John, Jacob Myers, Francis, Rebecca, Myers, Joseph, Charles Edmund, Elizabeth Rosanna, George Washington, Benjamin Franklin and Margaret Ann Deal.

SUSANNAH DEAL, third child of John and Elizabeth Gardener Deal, was born in Frankford on December 23, 1777. She married Jacob Harper, a member of The Presbyterian Church of Frankford, who died on February 11, 1829. On March 21, 1840, she was awarded her share in the partition of her father's estate. On May 14, 1866, she died, at the great age of eighty-eight years, and is buried in the cemetery of The Presbyterian Church of Frankford. The children of Jacob and Susannah Deal Harper were: John, Jacob, Robert, Jane Louise (born October 13, 1815, married Robert Huckle), Mary (married William Stratton), died May 24, 1895, Charles Lukens (born December 16, 1820), Doak, Martha and Frank Harper.

The sixth generation of the Deal family in America is traced through the lives of the eleven children of Jacob and Edith Myers Deal.

JOHN DEAL, the eldest child, was born on December 12, 1799, in the Frankford District of Philadelphia and there received his education. He was engaged during his lifetime in the manufacture of shoes, but at various times held positions of public trust.

He was appointed Postmaster of Frankford in 1845, and held that position until the outbreak of the War of Secession in 1861. An old resident, in telling of this time, says the accommodations of the postoffice consisted of an ordinary table with a red cover thrown upon it, and at one end was a box containing about a dozen pigeon-holes, in which the letters were placed until called for. In course of time the mail received grew larger and the postmaster was forced to engage the services of a boy to deliver the letters to the people who failed to come for them.

In 1850 John Deal was elected to the office of Justice of the Peace and received his commission from William F. Johnston, Governor of the State of Pennsylvania. The original document is in the possession of his grandson, who lives in Philadelphia, and which reads as follows:

“Pennsylvania, S. S. (State coat of arms).

“In the name and by the authority of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

“WILLIAM F. JOHNSTON, Governor of the said Commonwealth.

“To John Deal of the County of Philadelphia, Esquire. Whereas it appears by the return made and transmitted to me according to law, that you the said John Deal, have been duly elected a Justice of the Peace, for the Borough of Frankford in the County of Philadelphia.

“Hereby giving and granting unto you, full right and title, to have and execute all and singular the powers, jurisdictions and authorities, and to receive and enjoy all and singular the emoluments to a Justice of the Peace lawfully belonging, or in anywise appertaining, by virtue of the Constitution and Laws of this Commonwealth. (Signed by Governor Johnston with the Great Seal of the State affixed.)

In 1834, John Deal married ELIZABETH DAVIS VANDEGRIFT, born October 6, 1796, the daughter of Daniel and Ann Evans Davis, and the widow of James Vandegrift of Philadelphia.

John Deal and his wife were members of The Presbyterian Church of Frankford, he having been admitted to membership when twenty-one years of age, and both labored zealously for the welfare of the Church. He was Superintendent of the Sunday School from 1854 to 1862 and was an elder of the Church for more than forty years. He served as a member of the Board of Trustees for forty-five years and was its Secretary for thirty-five years. His wife, Elizabeth, was known throughout the Frankford District for her beauty of character and benevolence, which was extended not alone to those who were bound to her by ties of religion, but to all whose needs were brought to her attention.

On February 21, 1840, John Deal filed his petition in the Orphans' Court praying for a Writ of Partition in the matter of the estate of his grandfather, John Deal, who had died in 1788. On March 21, 1840, the Court awarded to his aunt, Susannah Deal Harper, a portion of the old estate on Frankford Mill Creek and Robert Adams Road; the balance was sold and the purchase money divided among the children of his father, Jacob Deal.

Elizabeth Davis Vandegrift Deal died March 30, 1848, in her fifty-second year. John Deal, her husband, survived her, dying October 23, 1880, in his eighty-first year.

DEAL ANCESTRY—MYERS FAMILY

About the middle of the eighteenth century, JACOB MEYER, as the name was then spelled, came from Germany to America and, shortly after his arrival, settled in Cheltenham Township, Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, and engaged in farming.

In 1773 he bought from Edward Milnor and Susannah, his wife, of Roxborough, Philadelphia, seventy-seven acres of land in Cheltenham Township. The original deed for this purchase is in the possession of his great grandson, William H. Myers, of West Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Jacob Meyer was one of the founders of the German Reformed Church of Frankford, where he and his family were among the most active members. At the time of its erection he was on the building committee.

The children of Jacob Meyer were: Jacob, born 1762; Ann, born 1764, no further record; John, born 1766; Elizabeth, born 1770, no further record; Barbarah, born 1774, no further record; and Edith Myers, born March 17, 1778.

JACOB MYERS, eldest child of Jacob Meyer, was born in 1762 upon his father's farm in Cheltenham Township. While still a young man he served under General George Washington in the War of the Revolution. After the war he returned to Cheltenham Township and engaged in farming, and upon the death of his father, he inherited the farm. It was during this period that the family decided to change its name from "Meyer" to "Myers."

Jacob Myers was one of the trustees of the German Reformed Church, and it was he, with Jacob Deal and others, who led the congregation into the Presbyterian faith, changing its name to The Presbyterian Church of Frankford. He served the Church as one of its elders and trustees until his death, he and his wife being among its most regular attendants.

CAMPBELL ANCESTRY—CAMPBELL FAMILY

JOHN CAMPBELL, progenitor of the family, came from Scotland to America early in the eighteenth century, and settled on a farm near Trenton, New Jersey, where he and his wife and two sons, JAMES and JOHN, lived until the time of the War of the Revolution.

The elder Campbell and his son James were at first in sympathy with the British cause, but upon the occupation of Trenton by the British and Hessians, and the subsequent destruction of his crops, John Campbell became so incensed that he joined the patriot cause and exerted all his energies for its success.

At the outbreak of the War of the Revolution, JOHN CAMPBELL, the younger son, born in 1752, left his home and joined John Webster's Regiment of New-Jersey Rangers. Later, being sent to the western frontier, he joined Captain Nicholas Miller's Company in the Twelfth Pennsylvania Regiment, under Colonel William Cook. He served throughout the war, being wounded in the arm at the Battle of Piscatawney. At the close of the war he made his home in Northumberland County, Pennsylvania.

On April 19, 1819, while residing in Shamokin Township, Northumberland County, he made application for a pension, which was granted and paid by the United States Government until his death on May 23, 1822.

John Campbell was the grandfather of JOSEPH ANDREW KELLY CAMPBELL, whose ancestry is here being traced.

JOHN CAMPBELL, third, son of John Campbell, soldier of the War of the Revolution, was born near Lewisburg, Northumberland County, Pennsylvania. After reaching maturity he made the town of Lewisburg his home.

About 1819 he married Mary Helen (born in 1790), daughter of Colonel John and Sarah Poak Kelly, of Buffalo Valley, Union County, Pennsylvania, and continued to reside for a number of

After moving to Williamsport, Mary Helen Kelly Campbell was admitted, February 17, 1842, to membership in the Second (now Covenant) Presbyterian Church upon presentation of her letter from the Buffalo Cross Roads Presbyterian Church, her eldest child, Sarah Jane, being admitted at the same time. In 1842, her daughter, Elizabeth H. Campbell, was admitted upon profession of faith, and she was followed by her brothers, Joseph Andrew Kelly, on December 6, 1851, and David S., in March, 1852.

CAMPBELL ANCESTRY—KELLY FAMILY

The unsettled condition of the times in the north of Ireland early in the eighteenth century was the cause of many of its younger men leaving the country. One of them, JOHN KELLY, bidding his father, WILLIAM, good-by, sailed for America and landed in Philadelphia. He proceeded to what was then the outskirts of civilization and settled, some time between 1723 and 1730, in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, and commenced trading with the Indians.

In 1732, a dispute, lasting until 1737, arose between the Marylanders and the Pennsylvanians as to the state boundary line, the Marylanders seeking to gain control of the land west of the Susquehanna River north of the 40° of latitude. Thomas Cresap, who, in 1732, was Justice of Peace for Maryland, fortified certain strategic points, led his people in their battles, and supported them in their land sales made in violation of the laws of Pennsylvania. On November 23, 1736, a warrant was placed in the hands of Samuel Smith, Sheriff of Lancaster County, who resided in Donegal Township, for the arrest of Cresap for the murder of Knowles Daunt. Sheriff Smith called on John Kelly, Benjamin Sterratt, Arthur Buchanan, Samuel Scott and twenty-six others to assist him. On November 24, 1736, they surrounded Cresap's house, in which he had rallied a number of armed men, and being unable to drive him out, set fire to the house, overpowered him when he came out, and took him in triumph to Philadelphia, where he was placed in prison.

During the fighting Cresap's men killed one of their own number, Laughlin Malone. John Capper, of the Sheriff's party, was shot in the shoulder.

In 1738, John Kelly assisted the commissioners to lay out the first border line between Pennsylvania and Maryland.

On June 5, 1734, John Kelly requested from the proprietors the survey of a piece of ground of 200 acres in Lancaster County, which piece of ground he did not take up because of the unsettled state of the country. In the early part of 1750 he had a piece of land in Donegal Township, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, consisting of 140 acres, surveyed, and on November 11, 1750, received a patent for the ground from the proprietors, Thomas and Richard Penn. Here he and his wife, Mary (whom he had married in 1737), cultivated the ground, built their house and made their home for the remainder of their lives. This farm was located outside of what is now the town of Marietta.

John Kelly was a member of the Old Donegal Presbyterian Church, which was originally organized in 1721, and is situated near a beautiful spring about three miles west of Mount Joy. In 1726 the Church was organized by the Presbytery, who appointed the Reverend James Anderson as its Pastor, he serving until his death in 1740. The first church building was a log one, but in a short time a larger and more ornate structure was erected.

In the month of June, 1758, John Kelly died upon his farm, survived by four minor children, three sons and one daughter:

Andrew, born 1738, died (no record); William, born 1740, died after 1790; Elizabeth, born 1742, died in 1785; John, born February 11, 1744, died February 18, 1832.

Letters of Administration were taken out July 1, 1758, by James Anderson and Robert Spear, they bonding themselves for £500. On May 15, 1759, not quite one year after the death of John Kelly, Sr., the Administrators filed their account with the Register of Wills, showing a personal estate of £134, 19s, 6d, which sum, after the payment of his debts and the sum of £29, 2s, 4d to his son, Andrew, who had become of age, left £85, 12s, 5d, for division among the other three children upon the attainment of their majority. The real estate was held in trust until the arrival at legal age of the youngest son, John.

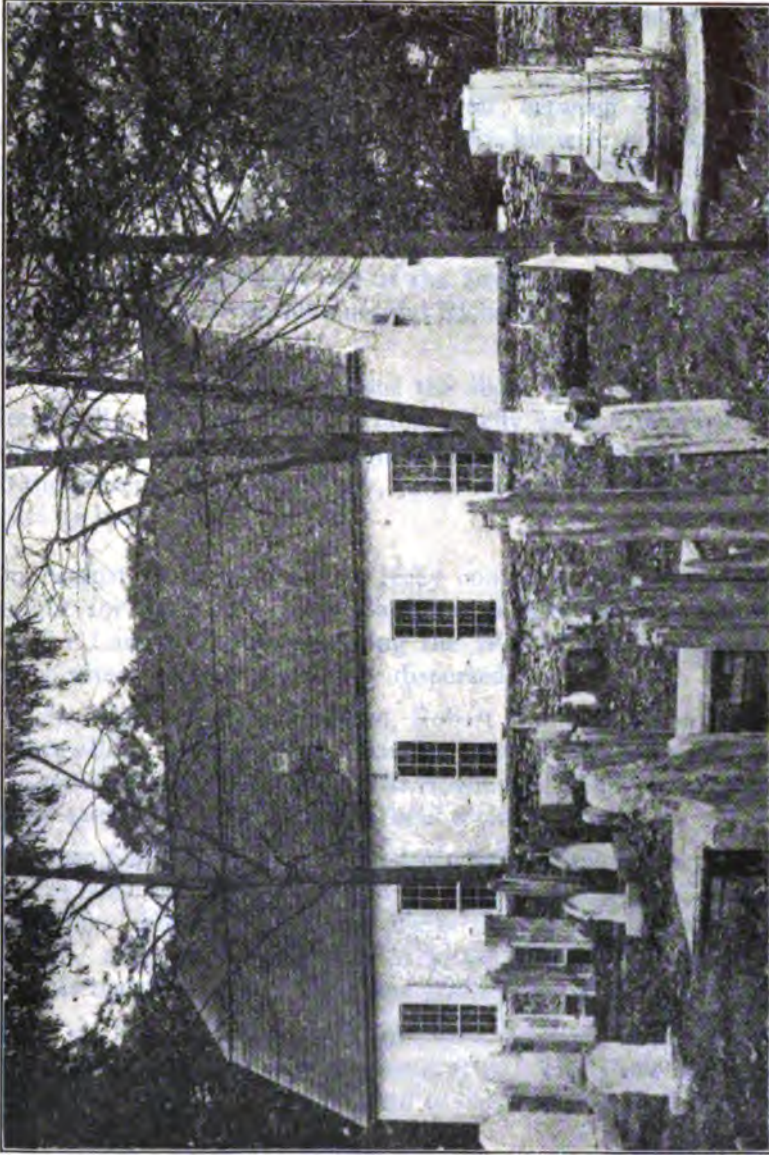

On August 13, 1766, John having meantime become of age, Andrew Kelly purchased from William, Elizabeth and John their shares in the father's real estate. The transfer of this property is recorded in the Recorder's Office, Lancaster, Pennsylvania, Book L, page 276. An extract of the conveyance follows:

"Indenture made August 13, 1766, between William Kelly, Robert Hanna and Elizabeth Kelly, his wife, and John Kelly, all of Newberry Township, in the county of York" etc. (of the one part) and Andrew Kelly, of the Township of Donegal county of Lancaster" etc. of the other part.

"Whereas John Kelly, late of the Township of Donegal, obtained a patent from Thomas and Richard Penn—November 13, 1750."

"Died intestate and left issue the above mentioned Andrew Kelly, William Kelly, Elizabeth Kelly (who afterward intermarried with Robert Hanna aforementioned and party to the present) and John Kelly, joint heirs to the aforesaid tract of land," etc.

On August 16, 1766, Andrew Kelly conveyed the land, which he bought for £264, to James Bayly, who later became wagon master for Lancaster County during the War of the Revolution. Not long after this sale the family dispersed.

Elizabeth Kelly and her husband, Robert Hanna, lived in Newberry Township. William Kelly married James Anderson's daughter, Susannah, and went to live in Maytown, and John, the youngest, went northwest to Northumberland County.

ANDREW KELLY, eldest child of John Kelly, Sr., and his wife, Mary, was born in 1738 in Donegal Township, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. He lived upon his father's farm until its sale on August 16, 1766, after which he lived in retirement. Andrew Kelly never married. The date of his death is not known.

WILLIAM KELLY, second child of John, Sr., and Mary Kelly, was born in Donegal Township about 1740. He lived on his father's farm until 1758, when he went to live with his sister, Elizabeth Kelly Hanna, in Newberry Township, York County, Pennsylvania. In 1769 he married Susannah, daughter of James and Ruth Bayly Anderson and granddaughter of the Rev. James Anderson, Pastor of Donegal Church. He moved to Maytown, Lancaster County, and in 1777-1778 was Sheriff of Lancaster County. He took the Oath of Allegiance to the State of Pennsylvania in 1777, was Collector of Excise Taxes in 1778, and later, Justice of the Peace. He was in Adjutant Trent's Regiment of Associates, Lancaster County Militia, became lieutenant in 1781, and after the war resided in Maytown. His wife, Susannah, having died, he took for a second wife Margaret Scott. The dates of his second marriage and of his death are not known. The children of William and Susannah Anderson Kelly were: Elizabeth, Ruth, John and Ruth (second).

ELIZABETH KELLY, third child of John, Sr., and Mary Kelly, was born in Donegal Township, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, in the year 1742. In 1762 she married Robert Hanna and made her residence in Newberry Township, York County, Pennsylvania, where she died in 1785. The date of her husband's death is not known. The children of Robert and Elizabeth Kelly Hanna were Jane, Elizabeth, Susannah and Margaret.

JOHN KELLY, fourth child of John, Sr., and Mary Kelly, was born on February 11, 1744, on the farm in Donegal Township, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. This child was destined to take an important part in the history of his country, and it is interesting to note that his birthplace was within a stone's throw of that of Robert Fulton, the inventor of the steamboat.

John Kelly grew up on the farm, remaining there after the death of his father in 1758. Following the marriage of his sister, Elizabeth, to Robert Hanna, in 1762, he went to live with them in Newberry Township, York County, Pennsylvania. On attaining his majority he received his share of his father's estate and in the year 1766 sold his interest in the family farm to his brother, Andrew.

For years he had chafed at the monotony of life in a settled community and longed for the dangers and excitements of the frontier. Accordingly, in 1768, he left his sister and went to Buffalo Valley, then part of Berks County, Pennsylvania. He was twenty-four years old, six feet two inches tall, with sandy hair and blue eyes, vigorous and muscular, with his body so inured to labor as to be almost insensible to fatigue, and a mind which understood correct principles with the firmness to adhere to them. Thus equipped he soon took a commanding position in the new community.

Buffalo Valley had long been noted as a feeding ground for large numbers of bison. Buffalo Creek, flowing through the Valley, was the favorite bathing place for the now vanished animals, great numbers of which spent the summer on Buffalo Mountain. Northumberland County not yet having been created, the Valley was then part of Berks County. On November 5, 1768, these lands were purchased from the Indians, and on June 11, 1769, the land office was established and the land opened for settlement. It was here that John Kelly filed his application, the land being surveyed in August of the same year. It was situated on Spruce Run in what was then White Deer, now Kelly Township. It ran from Buffalo Creek along Spruce Run up to the bend where it turns west of the line of the township. Here he suffered all the privations of a pioneer, taking part in defending the settlements from the expeditions of hostile Indians and in time acquired a wide reputation as an Indian fighter.

Many anecdotes are told of his prowess in fighting the savages and they add a thrill to the annals of Indian warfare.

When the Indians menaced the safety of the population on the frontier he was among the first to offer his services for its defense. He had the principal command as colonel of scouting parties. A company of men under him was stationed for three months on the Great Island to guard the advanced settlements and later his regiment of militia garrisoned Fort Reid at what is now Lock Haven, a few miles above Fort Horn.

On May 5, 1778, he was in command with part of his battalion on duty at Penn's Valley and was also in command at the capture of Freeland's Fort.

On July 3, 1778, occurred the historic massacre of Wyoming, which so demoralized the settlers of Buffalo Valley that they abandoned their farms and fled in terror to Fort Augusta. This has very aptly been described as the "Big Runaway" which started on July 5, 1778. Colonel Kelly was one of the first to return and it is told that for two harvests the reapers took their rifles to the fields for protection, some doing guard duty while others gathered the grain.

In May, 1779, a marauding party, consisting of fifteen to seventeen Indians, killed John Sample and his wife and drove off Sergeant Christian Van Gundy, Sr., and his men, who had come to rescue them. Colonel Kelly, who was in command of the Northumberland Militia, pursued seven of the Indians, taking with him his dog, which had been trained to follow an Indian trail and would immediately drop upon approaching one. The Colonel separated from his party and made a detour. As he proceeded rapidly through the woods he fell into a hole made by an uprooted tree. Glancing about, much to his astonishment, he saw five Indians sitting like turkeys on the trunk. He made a hole through the root and leveled his rifle; simultaneously there was a crack of the rifles of his men from the opposite side. Four of the Indians were killed; the fifth, after a vigorous chase, escaped.

The Colonel's cabin stood in front of the building now standing on what was his farm, near a spring which ran along the present road. One night he was awakened by the growling of his dog. He arose and through a hole cut in the door saw something moving in the bushes at the end of an oak log across Spruce Run, which proved to be an Indian. Taking aim at him as he raised his head, the Colonel fired, the ball passing through the Indian's skull and killing him instantly. Without assistance, Colonel Kelly buried the body in a lot by the spring, marked the place with a stone, and, fearing the vengeance of the Indians, kept the matter secret for many years. The story became known in 1832, through the curiosity of Isaac Bower, a boy in the Colonel's employ, who raised the stone and finding the skull, hid it under the porch of the house, and produced it several days later when the Colonel was in conversation with Doctor Robert Vanvalzah.

As so much of his life was spent in fighting the Indians, it is not surprising that Colonel Kelly developed an intense antipathy to them. It is told of him that upon being asked to give funds to assist in evangelizing them, he said he would not give a cent to send preachers to them, but would give any sum required to buy ropes to hang them.

In 1771, when but twenty-seven years of age, he was a captain in the First Battalion of Associates of Northumberland County, and at thirty-one received the following commission as major:

During August, 1772, John Kelly served on the first grand jury empaneled in Northumberland County, the first court of the county being established at Fort Augusta. It will be recalled that Northumberland County was erected March 21, 1772, out of parts of Berks, Bedford, Lancaster, Cumberland and Northampton Counties and extended as far west as Lake Erie, Pike County on the east, New York State on the north, and the mouth of Mahantango Creek on the south.

In December, 1775, he was with Plunket's Expedition to Wyoming, which attempted to subdue the disorders arising out of the refusal of the Connecticut People to obey the laws of Pennsylvania, they claiming that under their charter they owned the land as far south as the forty-first degree of latitude, which passes a mile or more north of what is now Lewisburg. Baffled in their attempt to storm the breastworks, and the weather being intolerably severe, it was deemed advisable to abandon the expedition.

On July 8, 1776, John Kelly was elected a member of the convention to meet in Philadelphia for the purpose of adopting a constitution for the Pennsylvania State Government. The convention met on July 15, 1776, in Philadelphia, and Doctor Benjamin Franklin was chosen President. It continued, by adjournments, until September 28, when the Constitution was adopted and signed.

At the outbreak of the War of the Revolution he was first a captain in Colonel Cookson Long's battalion on the frontier, and later, after helping to organize the Associators, was a major in Colonel James Potter's Battalion, and was present at the surrender of the Hessians at Trenton.

It was at the Battle of Princeton that Colonel, then Major, Kelly performed a distinguished service which entitles him to a place among the heroes of his country.

After his success at Trenton, General Washington was making a forced march to Princeton, being rapidly pursued by the British under General Cornwallis. As Cornwallis neared Worth's Mills on Stony Brook, Washington sent orders to Colonel Potter to destroy the bridge in the path of the advancing British. Colonel Potter ordered Major Kelly to send a detail for the purpose. The Major, stating that he preferred not to order another to do what he might be suspected of being afraid to do himself, asked and received permission to lead the detail himself. In the midst of the destruction of the bridge, the British opened a heavy fire of round-shot, several balls of which struck the log upon which he stood and threw him into the stream. Not expecting him to escape, the bridge being destroyed, his party moved off. By great exertion he reached the shore through the high water and floating timbers and hastened to join his command. Encumbered as he was with wet and frozen clothes, he made a prisoner of an armed British scout and brought him into camp. Major Kelly's destruction of this bridge was of great value to the American Army at Princeton upon the momentous third of January, 1777.

In later years, Colonel Kelly told that during this period, for three days at one time, there was no service of provisions and on the march, before and after the battle, they were thirty-six hours under arms without sleep.

On May 6, 1778, Colonel Kelly was appointed agent for confiscated estates, and in 1780 was elected a member of the Pennsylvania Assembly.

At a meeting held at Milton, Pennsylvania, on March 4, 1801, to celebrate the inauguration of President Thomas Jefferson, Colonel Kelly had the distinction of proposing the toast: "May this be the happy day to unite the hearts of all true Americans in their duty to God and our illustrious President."

When the Northumberland County Militia was enrolled on July 16, 1780, Colonel Kelly was in command, but they were discharged August 15, of the same year. In 1781, when they were re-enrolled, Colonel Kelly was in command of the First Battalion.

On August 2, 1783, Colonel Kelly was appointed Justice of the Peace for Northumberland County, which office he filled with kindness and impartiality for twenty years. In 1794, Colonel Kelly was elected Lieutenant Colonel of the First Regiment of Northumberland County Militia, and received the following Commission from Thomas Mifflin, Governor of the State of Pennsylvania:

The original copy of this document is in the possession of a great-grandson residing in Philadelphia.

After the War of the Revolution he returned to his comfortable homestead in what is now Kelly Township and devoted his time to farming, with occasional hunting trips for big game. It is said that he was particularly fond of hunting buffaloes and had the reputation of having killed over one hundred of them. Stories of some of his hunts have been handed down to us by Michael Grove, one of the pioneers of Buffalo Valley, who died in 1827, one of which relates how, late in the fall of 1800 after the first snowfall, while out with one of his neighbors, Michael McClister, looking for wolf tracks, he saw three buffaloes, a bull, a cow and a calf, at the edge of the wood in one of his clearings, which was a short distance south of the Kelly home. McClister fired, killing the calf, but the bull and cow escaped into the forest. This pair, which were of enormous size, were seen from time to time in the neighborhood, but managed always to elude their pursuers. It seemed that fate was preserving them to fall before the prowess of the Colonel.

On the morning of January 9, 1801, he was riding on his way to the mill, mounted on "Brandywine," his old charger of Revolutionary times. It was a misty morning and had not his horse snorted the Colonel would have ridden directly into a mammoth buffalo bull which blocked the narrow crossroads. Dismounting and taking careful aim, he shot the bison through the heart.

The spot where this buffalo was killed, which is supposed to have been the last of its species shot in a wild state in Pennsylvania, became known as Buffalo Cross Roads. The huge skull, nailed to a pitch pine tree, was a familiar landmark for many years. About 1820 it was blown from the tree in a gale, when it was picked up by one of the Kleckner children, related to the Kellys, and for half a century reposed in the attic of the Kleckner homestead in the vicinity of Buffalo Cross Roads. When the mansion was remodeled some years ago, these relics were destroyed in ignorance of their interesting association.

Colonel John Kelly was all his life a staunch Presbyterian, worshipping at the old Buffalo Cross Roads Presbyterian Church almost from the time of its erection in 1775, and was one of its liberal supporters.

In 1787 the Reverend Hugh Morrison became Pastor, and in 1791, when the pews of the church were first numbered, Colonel Kelly selected pew 33, occupying it with his family, he having married Sarah, daughter of James and Mary Poak, of White Deer, in 1773. For a time he shared the pew with Captain Joseph Poak and later with John McLaughlin. His mother-in-law, Mary Poak, the widow of James Poak, selected pew 23, which she and her family occupied until her death in 1792. Her sons kept the pew until the old church was torn down and a new one erected in 1816.

Colonel Kelly took a prominent part in all public affairs until near the end of his life, when he was incapacitated by disease. He had the honor during his lifetime of having that part of the land where he lived erected into a separate township and called "Kelly" after him. It was formed in 1823 from part of White Deer Township and at first was called "Pike," but in 1824 this was changed to "Kelly." The Colonel was a firm believer in the value of land in Pennsylvania and during his lifetime took out patents for thousands of acres in various parts of the State, at his death being possessed of over 3000 acres.

It was the custom in Buffalo Valley, on the occasion of a wedding, to welcome the bride with a party composed of elderly folk. The following is a list of those present Wednesday evening, October 20, 1824, at what was probably the homecoming of William Linn, of Kelly, who had married Jane Morrow, of Franklin County, on October 14:

Colonel John Kelly, Elizabeth Kelly, Dr. Robert Vanvalzah, Elizabeth Vanvalzah, William Poak, Esq., and wife, Andrew McBeth and wife, James Dale, Esq., Eliza Dale, Colonel Aaron Chamberlain and wife, John Campbell, Maria Campbell, Thomas Sawyer, Elizabeth Sawyer, William Linn, Charles Maclay and Elizabeth Vanvalzah.

The next evening at the same place the festivities were taken up by the young people, among whom were William Kelly, Andrew Kelly, Joseph Kelly, Robert P. Maclay, Samuel Gamble, James Mathers, F. F. Linn, James Sawyer, Joseph Candor, John Young, John Vanvalzah, Robert Foster, John Chamberlain, Mrs. S. Kelly, Miss Sarah Darragh, Sarah McClellan, Margaret and Catherine McClellan, Sarah and Hetty Foster, Catherine and Mary Hood, Frances Chamberlain, Elizabeth and Margaret Vanvalzah, Elinor Young and Jane Davidson.

On January 2, 1831, Colonel John Kelly was shocked by the sudden death of his wife, Sarah. The evening before she had retired in her usual health. During the night she arose and prepared for herself a cup of tea. Later she was heard groaning and complaining of pains in her stomach, but before the family could reach her side she died. Colonel Kelly died the following year, February 18, 1832, at the advanced age of 88. He was buried beside his wife in the Cemetery of the Presbyterian Church at Lewisburg. At the funeral, the Honorable James Merrill delivered an address on the life and character of this distinguished citizen.

On Wednesday, April 8, 1835, a beautiful monument to his memory was erected by his family, in the Presbyterian Cemetery, the occasion affording an opportunity for a public demonstration in his honor. Three companies of cavalry, two from Northumberland and one from Union County, together with three companies of infantry, formed the military lines, and a host of ladies, with several hundred citizens and strangers, formed the civil procession. The order of procession was:

Trumpeters of cavalry, a section of cavalry, band of music, the companies of infantry (in sections of four), the Revolutionary soldiers, citizens, professional gentlemen, the monument (drawn by four gray horses), the master architect and four journeymen, the orator and clergy, relatives, the field officers, ladies, a section of cavalry.

The whole was flanked by two lines of cavalry and, thus formed, proceeded to the cemetery under command of the Grand Marshall, where the military presented arms and the citizens uncovered. The architect then placed the monument in its place. After the Marshall made the dedication, the Hon. James Merrill delivered an address, after which the infantry fired appropriate salutes from both sides of the monument and over it, which were followed by a general fire from the cavalry.

The procession was then re-formed, returned to the place from which it started, and was then dismissed.

The following are the inscriptions on the monument, on the one side,

Later, in 1850, when the new Presbyterian Church was built, the cemetery being needed, the bodies of Colonel Kelly and his wife were removed to the Lewisburg Cemetery, where they now rest.
