The Envoy Condominium Code of Conduct

The Envoy Code of Conduct expects respectful, professional, and cooperative behavior within the Envoy Association community, applying to owners, residents, tenants, guests, Board and committee members, employees, management, vendors, and contractors.

All communications must be civil, constructive, problem-solving, and adhere to established procedures. Harassment, threats, intimidation, retaliation, personal attacks, discrimination, intentional disruption, and interference with Association operations will not be tolerated. A fair process for reporting and reviewing conduct concerns, including written complaints, opportunities for all parties to be heard, and the potential use of informal resolution or mediation shall be followed. This Code emphasizes fairness and impartiality in handling complaints and affirms that respectful disagreement with individuals or Board decisions is a normal and acceptable part of community.

Consequences of Violations

Violations of this Code of Conduct may result in appropriate action by the Association consistent with its governing documents and applicable law. The established oversight committee may provide a written warning, request corrective action, encourage mediation, or refer to legal counsel or law enforcement.
