President's Message - Wendy Eisner

Having just celebrated Thanksgiving, I am continuing to think of what I am thankful for in my life. Of course, I am thankful for my friends and family, but I'm trying to dig a little deeper this year.

As I reflect back on this year, I have come to realize that I am deeply thankful for our community and our dedicated staff. I moved here when I had one child and knew no one. I was embraced and wrapped up in a warm blanket of friendship and love that has continued through all of the ups and downs of my life.

So I just want to say thank you and wish everyone a wonderful Thanksgiving and a happy and healthy New year. May our entire community and your families be blessed with peace and happiness.

Celebrating the Art of Movement

This semester our classrooms are celebrating the art of movement through creative drama, physical education, and music & movement. From our teachers to our visiting instructors, we are taking our mind, bodies and creativity to a whole new level.

Creative arts and music play such an important role in our everyday schedule. The classrooms are singing songs and using their bodies to act, jump, dance or skip to the music.

Mrs. Lori Luckman, our long-time friend and community member, joins our Pre-K classrooms monthly, giving the children the stage to explore the dramatic arts and develop a love for the craft. Through role playing and interactive story telling, they are truly showcasing their talents.

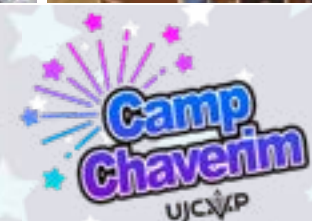

Coach Casey, our youth coach with Stretch-n-Grow Fitness, visits our campus and engages our little ones in exercise experiences that get them moving, including: fitness, dance, gymnastics, music and yoga.

These wonderful instructors, combined with our phenomenal Sarfan Center educators, are surely giving our students a platform to be themselves, expand their creativity, explore new interests and share their voices!

Camp Chaverim

Thank you to all of the campers who joined us to share an afternoon of pizza, old camp stories and fun camp games! Stay tuned because our next Camp Chaverim event is just around the corner!

A Modern Day Chanukkah & Mikveh Opportunity

by Rabbi Gershon Litt

Over 2100 years ago the Jewish people were told that they could not practice their religion freely by King Antiochus. The Assyrian Greeks put idols in the Holy Temple and foreign thoughts into the heart of Jewish society. Worshiping the physical instead of the spiritual was the theme of the time and experiencing euphoria through the delight of pleasure was the Assyrian Greek worship of choice. As the Jews pushed back against this physical and spiritual energy and defeated this tireless enemy they also rededicated the Holy Temple, brought back the sacrifices, reinstated Jewish sovereignty, and inspired countless generations of Jews for generations yet to come.

This is the story and theme of Chanukkah, but it is also a story that could have happened 500 years ago, 100 years ago, 50 years ago or last week. Since time immemorial the Jewish people have suffered at the hands of those who would seek to destroy our spiritual power. Time and time again our enemies rise up and declare that we cannot be free to be Jews and when we refuse and continue to live and flourish, even centuries after such cowards have been destroyed, we show the world that while we go through times of trouble we can always be renewed and we will succeed. This is true of us as a people and it is also true of us, as individuals.

Each and every Jew has the power to connect and be great, but we also, at times, fall and need strength to get up and start again. All of us need a rebirth, a new beginning, a new opportunity to start fresh, and a rededication to that which is truly important to us. In Jewish practice the one mitzvah that represents the power of rebirth and rededication is the mikvah. Using the mikvah means that one's entire being enters as one state and exits with new energy and new potential. The mikvah is the ultimate tool to turn around the past and define a new future. Just like our ancestors have done for thousands of years it is time for us to embrace this powerful tool and bring a mikvah back to Newport News, VA. Please partner with us to have a true, "Chanukas habayis," a dedication of our new community mikvah, in Newport News.

Our UJCVP is a member of the consortium RISING TIDE, a national network devoted to opening the mikveh experience to the entire Jewish Community.

Jewish Family Services - Libby Batten

I personally needed a change in my social work corner, thinking about all that we do during the holidays. So, read below and remember this during our stressful times, or if you just need time for yourself to relax. Happy holidays to all!

Remember, the holidays can be exhausting! This mantra is a great way to recognize when you need a break from all the year-end craziness. Notice when you feel exhausted, overwhelmed or you just need some peace and quiet. Don't succumb to the pressure to always be "on" and available, but instead give yourself permission to take a break from the busy-ness of the holiday season and go for a walk, find a quiet place to simply unplug and breathe, or listen to some relaxing music. You will find that not only will you feel better for it, but you will be more open and receptive to everyone around you when you give yourself some time to relax and unwind.

- Sit with your spine upright in a comfortable seat and place your hands over your heart.
- Breathe in and out through your nose.
- Soften your eyes, relax your jaw, and create a slight smile on your face.
- Breathe in the feeling of gratitude. Rather than listing the things you appreciate, try to embody a sense of gratitude. Let your heart expand as you simply appreciate what is good in your life.
- Then, after a few minutes of gratitude and appreciation, place your hands on your lap, and relax.
- Next, focus your attention on the joy within your being. When your mind wanders, simply guide it back to your breath and the joy within you.
- Let the feelings of gratitude and joy increase and expand throughout your entire body.
- Turn your mouth upwards to a slight smile and keep your eyes soft.
- Imagine your whole body smiling.

The Levys of Monticello
 2022, 1 hr 11 min, Documentary

A missing chapter of American Jewry comes to light in this fascinating chronicle of the Virginia home of one of the nation's Founding Fathers. Thomas Jefferson's Monticello residence, just outside of Charlottesville, stands as a complex symbol of the paradox of democracy. Designed by Jefferson, built and tended by slaves, the palatial plantation was a presidential retreat, retirement home, and final resting place. Sold due to mounting debts, Uriah Phillips Levy, a Jewish naval officer and fervent believer in Jeffersonian ideals, became its unlikely caretaker. When historical preservation was all but unheard of, Levy's family restored and saved the estate from ruin. The story behind this national treasure confronts the stain of ongoing racism and antisemitism that remain part of the national narrative.

The Un-Word
 2020, 1 hr 25 min, German, English subtitles

This German satire lays bare the discords of modern multiculturalism. Tempers flare after a Jewish student is goaded in a schoolyard brawl. After more taunts by Muslim classmates, the 15-year-old fights back, injuring an Iranian and a Palestinian student. The film is intended as a darkly humorous conversation-starter, seeking a common language in the unending fight against intolerance.

Sunday, March 26, 2022 at 2:00pm
Betrayed
 2020, 2 hr 6 min, Norwegian, English subtitles

Based on true events, this Norwegian narrative film exposes how Norway's government and people systematically persecuted the country's Jews, and then collaborated in deporting them to German death camps. The horror and callousness of those times is embodied in the experiences of one Jewish family, the Braudes, whose members we get to know through their photographs and their prize-winning portrayals by actors, making this a very personal story for the audience.

We greatly appreciate the support and loyalty of our audiences.
