The Lone Squadron

Chapter 6

When they returned to the ship they were greeted with cheers from the rebels. While everyone was celebrating, they received a transmission from the Imperial officer, General Veers. He said that the Empire is searching the galaxy for the Lone Squadron and when they find them, they will eliminate them. The Lone Squadron decided to go to Kijimi. Just as they left the ship, they saw Boba Fett's Slave I coming towards them.

When Boba Fett saw them, he immediately started to fire at them. Surprised at the sudden attack they had to turn the other way but there they were met by Imperial TIE fighters. The Rebel command ship saw their predicament and fired at the Imperials blowing them all up. Boba Fett quickly turned away to prevent being destroyed.

Once the coast was clear the Lone Squadron made the jump to hyperspace and headed towards Kijimi. When they came out of hyperspace, they flew into Kijimi's atmosphere hoping to find a peaceful sky, but they saw that there were already Imperial ships in the skies. Fortunately, none of the Empire's ships saw them and they were able to descend to the planet's surface.

The Lone Skywalker War

Darth Fenix has arrived at the Sith temple. He is ready to touch the raw flame saber. But wait, “This is too easy,” he thinks. Buzz! He turns around and sees six men in armor with black lightsabers. Darth Fenix grabs the Raw flame saber and runs . He escapes the temple, yet they are right behind him.

Boom! All of those mighty men bowed down to him. The reason was that he was wearing the Raw flame saber. He felt power, yet was sad for he wanted to be good

He felt that it was too late, which angered him. The power of the saber spread up to his shouldered and he let out a blast the killed one of the warriors. He ran to his ship and jumped to lightspeed, but Rey followed him. He exited hyperspace above Cantonica and crashed in front of Canto Bight.

HELP WANTED!

Please Contribute

The Nevarro News is a small newspaper written in part by YOU! It would be really helpful if you could think of something to put in it. Anything will work, as long as it is Star Wars.

It would help to make this newspaper better and more interesting if everyone would contribute. Please do not think that this is a command, it is just a friendly request.

You can submit anything, including:

- Drawings
- Facts
- Stories
- Theories
- Updates
- Games

Please send or give me a copy of your ideas, whichever is easier for you, as soon as possible. It is not the easiest thing to write a newsletter alone, so I would really appreciate your help.

Thanks

Exploring the Little Known Characters of Star Wars

Constable Zuvio

Eagle Falcon

In 2015, the hype was high for Star Wars Episode VII: The Force Awakens, and an information that could be gleaned was examined thoroughly- sometimes too much so. One of the early toys to come out before the movie was of a character named Constable Zuvio. Zuvio was a Kyuzo, the same species as the bounty hunter Embo from Star Wars: The Clone Wars series, with the same kind of giant eyes and large circular hat. Zuvio was said to be the constable of Nima Outpost on Jakku, working to keep law and order on this planet at the fringe of the known galaxy. People began speculating wildly about Zuvio's role in The Force Awakens. They tried to put together what little was known about the plot to piece him into the story.

Then finally, on December 18, the film came out, and... Zuvio was nowhere to be seen. People went to see it multiple times to try and spot him, but they couldn't find him. Finally. Some intense detective work revealed that Zuvio was indeed in the film, in just seven frames, always in the background during the chase through Nima Outpost. Fortunately, Zuvio did appear in a canon short story called "High Noon On Jakku," where we get to see a little bit of his no-nonsense, honest character displayed in a Kyuzo of few words. Hopefully a future star wars story will explore Zuvio more.
