Trust the Process. God is not Finished.

Scripture: Philippians 1:6 - Being confident of this very thing, that he which hath begun a good work in you will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ.

Trust the process means having faith in a planned journey, system, or series of steps, even when you face challenges or cannot see immediate results. Instead of stressing over the final outcome or feeling discouraged by temporary setbacks, it encourages you to focus your energy on consistent daily actions and learning from the experience. Focus on what you can control. Put your energy into the present steps rather than worrying about the distant future. Accept setbacks, view delays, mistakes, or difficult middle stages as normal parts of growth. Have patience, believe that worthwhile achievement—like learning a skill, healing, or reaching a major goal—take time. What specific situation or goal are you facing right now? What part of the journey feels the most frustrating or uncertain?

God is not finished means that God is still actively working, healing, and growing you, and your current struggles or setbacks are not the final chapter of your story. The God who began a good work within us continues it through our lives and will finish it when we meet Him face-to-face. God's work for us began when Christ died on the cross to forgive our sins. His work with us began when we first believed. Now the Holy Spirit lives in us, enabling us to be more like Christ every day. Paul is describing the process of Christian growth and maturity that begins when we accept Jesus and continues until Christ returns. Do you sometimes feel as if you'll never make progress in your spiritual life? When God starts a project, He finishes it? As with the Philippians, God will help us grow in grace until He has completed His work in your life. When you are discouraged, remember that God won't give up on you. He promises to finish the work He has begun. When you feel incomplete, unfinished, or distressed by your shortcomings, remember God's promise and provision. Don't let your present condition rob you of the joy of knowing Christ or keep you from growing closer to Him.

A prayer by the Apostle Paul for believers to find strength, unity, and deep spiritual clarity in Christ (Colossians 2:2). He wanted us to be encouraged, cheered, and emotionally or spiritually braced against suffering, doubt, or outside pressure. We should experience deep unity and harmony. Like individual threads woven tightly into a single cloth, we are bound together by Christian love, which protects us from division. Paul desires for us to possess an abundant, confident certainty in our spiritual knowledge. It is not wealth in money, but a rich, unshakeable confidence in the truth of the Gospel. The ultimate goal is a clear, personal recognition of God's hidden secret now revealed. God, the Father, and Jesus Christ are fully unified, and that Christ is the very embodiment of God's wisdom. We can conquer fear with faith, even though an entire army surrounds us on every side, human numbers do not matter compared to divine protection. Therefore, we do not have to live in panic or dread when facing overwhelming odds—whether that means literal danger, workplace pressure, betrayal, or life crises. Fear is replaced by calm trust when we remember that God is in control. The child of God who places their hope and patient trust in God will receive divine, unending power to overcome physical and emotional exhaustion. Instead of sitting around doing nothing, trust in God's timing and relying completely on Him rather than your own power. Our human energy runs out, but God supplies a fresh, supernatural supply of inner power to replace weakness. We use our trials as spiritual updrafts to rise above hard times with God's help. Because God provides endurance for both sudden shocks and long, daily hardships.
