Etienne Clément's intensely alluring and complex photographic works weave together two types of child's play: the type that involves building structures and the type that builds stories.

Constructed like paintings in that they're carefully composed to build a narrative, Clément's works are a collage of toy figures, miniature magazines and false-modelled landscapes that sit in the foreground, set against a background - often a building, a landscape or a ruin - that consists of a photographic image that the artist has previously taken and used as a backdrop, as on a stage.

Clément's work has been widely exhibited in the UK, at BALTIC Centre for Contemporary Art, Gateshead, in the Jerwood Space, at Bloomberg's ArtFutures, the Architectural Association, the RIBA Gallery, the Geffrye Museum and the V&A Museum of Childhood in London. He also has exhibited at Danysz Gallery in Paris.

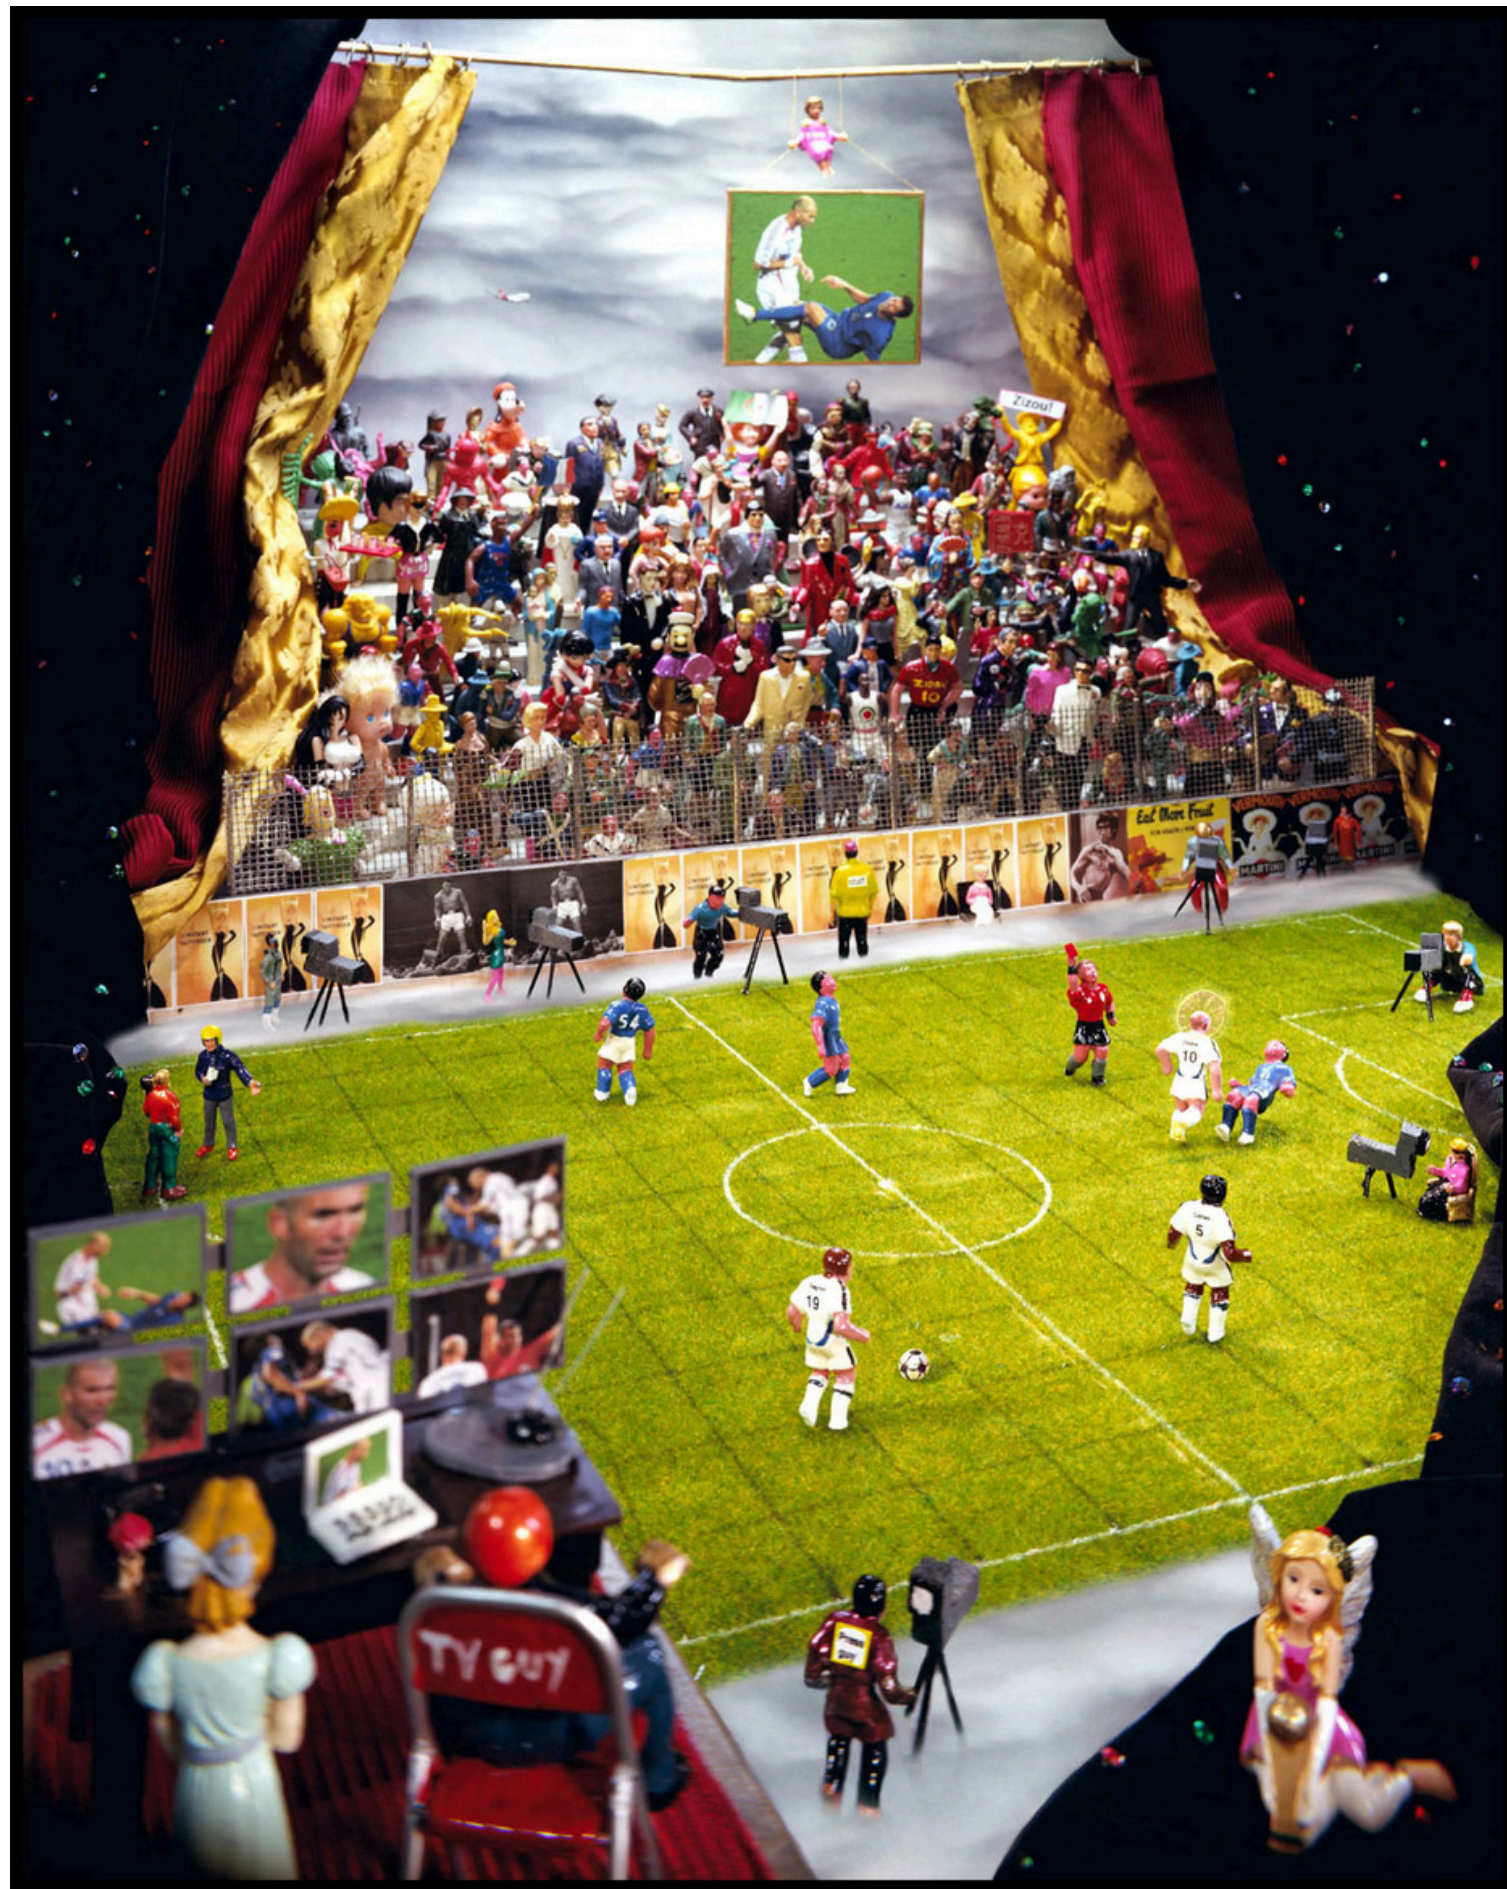

He has showed work at the Printmakers Gallery Edinburgh alongside the likes of the Chapman Brothers, Damien Hirst and Andy Warhol. Etienne Clément was born in Paris and studied at La Sorbonne and l'Ecole du Louvre. He was a prize winner in the European Architectural Photographer of the Year 1997.

He is an artist member of the Contemporary Art Society (CAS). He recently opened an art space Les Fêtes Galantes de London Fields in London where he lives and works.
