

Health Education Classes

Health classes can help you optimize your health. As part of your PacificSource medical coverage, you may be able to participate in health education classes and receive reimbursement.

How does this work?

The program will reimburse eligible PacificSource medical members up to a maximum of $150 per member per plan year for health and wellness classes. Covered dependents are also eligible for this program.

Check with your local hospital or organization to see what health and wellness classes they offer.

Our Customer Service Representatives are happy to help you determine if the class you'd like to attend is eligible for reimbursement.

How do I get reimbursed?

After you've taken a class, just complete and mail in our reimbursement request form (on the back of this flier) with a copy of your receipt. The reimbursement will be paid directly to you after completion of the course or series.

Are there any limitations?

You must be an eligible and enrolled PacificSource member at the time of class registration and when the class begins to qualify for class reimbursement.

Reimbursement may include:

- Health and wellness classes taught by a licensed or certified instructor
- Classes that promote and maintain health and well-being, enhance quality of life. These types of classes may include:
 - First aid/AED/CPR
 - Nutrition when connected with a chronic condition
 - Prenatal classes
 - Any class that is offered by a hospital, including online courses
 - Cardiology services education (includes CPR and first aid)
 - Childbirth and parenting education, including babysitter, first aid/CPR (member only), sibling class, "Caring for your new brother or sister" class
