 - VAWA self-petitioner (I-485, I-601, I-212...)

→ How do I qualify?

- a) You qualify if you, your spouse, or head of household living with you receives a means-tested benefit such as Medicaid, SNAP/Food Stamps, TANF, or SSI.
 - NOT Medicare, unemployment benefits, social security retirement benefit, social security disability insurance (SSDI), Social Security Retirement-Survivors-Disability Insurance (RSDI), or student financial aid.
- b) You qualify if your income is below 150% of the Federal Poverty Guidelines (based on last year's Income Tax Returns)

→ How do I show proof?

Submit a copy of either the Approval Notice for the means-tested benefit or a copy of the most recent income tax return for the qualifying applicant or his/her parent if they live together.

→ My spouse receives a means-tested benefit, does that help me?

Yes, if you are residing with your spouse and are not separated.

→ My parents receive a means-tested benefit and we live together but I'm 21, does that help me?

No. You cannot use your parent's means-tested benefit even if you are living together, but may be considered if your income is at or below the 150% Federal Poverty Guidelines or show Financial Hardship.
