

Remote Business Analysis

Not Your Traditional Business Process Assessment (BPA)

Process is 100% Remote

Whether you are considering a system re-implementation or are contemplating a system change, this RBA will provide you with necessary data to maximize the success of either action.

"Using own our tools to help you understand your business and drive value. What a concept!"

The Remote Business Analysis (RBA) was designed for business leaders who struggle improving business performance through utilization of their ERP system. It provides a direct connection between your current business situation, your current or missing business processes, and expected outcomes.

The RBA focuses on building business value. The analysis is based upon proven quantitative metrics that are grounded in your actual data. Armed with this data, one of our experienced and knowledgeable professional service consultants, will provide assessments based upon your actual performance, both good and bad, against the metrics. Your current system configuration and data will be studied, and you will be shown your actual system usage. Both analyses expose the quality of data and your business processes (or lack thereof). A written report will contain the data, assessments, and recommendations for business process improvement.
