If you're considering homeschooling your child in the state of Massachusetts, understanding the homeschooling laws and requirements is crucial. Here's a brief overview to help you get started:

1. Homeschooling Options:

In Massachusetts, families have two primary options for homeschooling:

- Establishing a Home Education Program
- Enrolling in a Homeschool Extension Program

2. Establishing a Home Education Program:

If you choose to establish a home education program, you must:

- Notify the local school district of your intent to homeschool.
- Provide instruction in the subjects required by law, including mathematics, language arts, science, social studies, and physical education.
- Keep attendance records and submit an annual assessment of educational progress.

3. Enrolling in a Homeschool Extension Program:

Families may also choose to enroll their children in a homeschool extension program offered by a public school or collaborative. These programs provide curriculum resources, support, and oversight to homeschooling families.

4. Graduation Requirements:

Homeschooled students in Massachusetts must meet the same graduation requirements as students in public schools. These requirements include completing a minimum number of credits in core subjects such as English, mathematics, science, social studies, and electives.
