If you're considering homeschooling your child in the state of Alaska, understanding the homeschooling laws and requirements is crucial. Here's a brief overview to help you get started:

1. Homeschooling Options:

In Alaska, families have several options for homeschooling:

- Homeschooling under the homeschool statute
- Enrolling in a correspondence program
- Enrolling in a homeschool support program

2. Homeschooling Under the Homeschool Statute:

If you choose to homeschool under the homeschool statute, you must:

- Submit a letter of intent to homeschool to the local school district.
- Provide a basic education program that includes language arts, mathematics, social studies, science, and health.
- Keep attendance records and submit an annual assessment of your child's progress.

3. Correspondence Programs:

Alaska offers correspondence programs through public school districts or private organizations. These programs provide curriculum materials, teacher support, and oversight to homeschooling families.

4. Homeschool Support Programs:

Homeschool support programs, also known as homeschool cooperatives, provide resources, classes, and community to homeschooling families. These programs may offer field trips, group activities, and educational support.

5. Graduation Requirements:

Homeschooled students in Alaska must meet the same graduation requirements as students in public schools. These requirements include completing a minimum number of credits in core subjects such as English, mathematics, science, social studies, and electives.
