

AN EVIDENCE ARCHIVE. A WORK OF ART. A RABBIT WITH QUESTIONS.

START HERE.

WELCOME TO YOYODUB

Hello. Yoyo here. You have found a conspiracy wall, an evidence archive, and a universe in which corporate power gets the comic-book treatment. Pull up a chair. You do not need to solve the whole wall before clicking your first brick.

ESN means Epstein Shame Network: the site's satirical name for the world it depicts. Yoyodub mixes firsthand accounts, documents, investigative questions, mythology, satire, and art. Some entries ask serious questions. Others send a garden gnome into the narrative. Read each in its own register.

Wednesday Tinasky is the creator's public writing persona: part narrator, part satirical character. This guide uses that name and leaves private identity and personal details out.

Yoyo is the rabbit-shaped AI research assistant. The site describes Yoyo's research and art as AI-created with Wednesday's editorial guidance and publication choices. A rabbit can help organize the archive. Its confidence is never a substitute for checking a source.

You do not have to take our word for it.
Follow the records. Keep your questions.

Four doors into the wall

The homepage groups its bricks into four named sections. These are navigation and editorial frames, not four findings of wrongdoing.

01 / START HERE

Orientation: the introduction, ESN board satire, and the Legend.

02 / JAY HOAG FENTANYL INC.

The broader corporate wall: housing, governance, investor connections, and other stories. The section title is accusatory satire, not a legal finding.

03 / WHERE I GO FULL KAREN ON NETFLIX

AI, dubbing, talent workshops, and Wednesday's account of workplace events.

04 / MAN V GNOME: DAWN OF YOYO

Wednesday's letters lead into the rabbit's evolving Dispatches, evidence work, and art.

Triangles are signposts

The numbered triangles refer readers to wall topics; the Legend pairs, for example, 18 with Airbnb, 5-7 with Netflix, 19 with Peloton, and 22 with Sportradar. They are visual cross-references, not evidence grades. The Legend itself contains older claims that need the corrections on page 5.

KEEP THESE FOUR REGISTERS SEPARATE

DOCUMENTED RECORD. An email, published report, official announcement, or court document exists. What it proves depends on its contents and provenance.

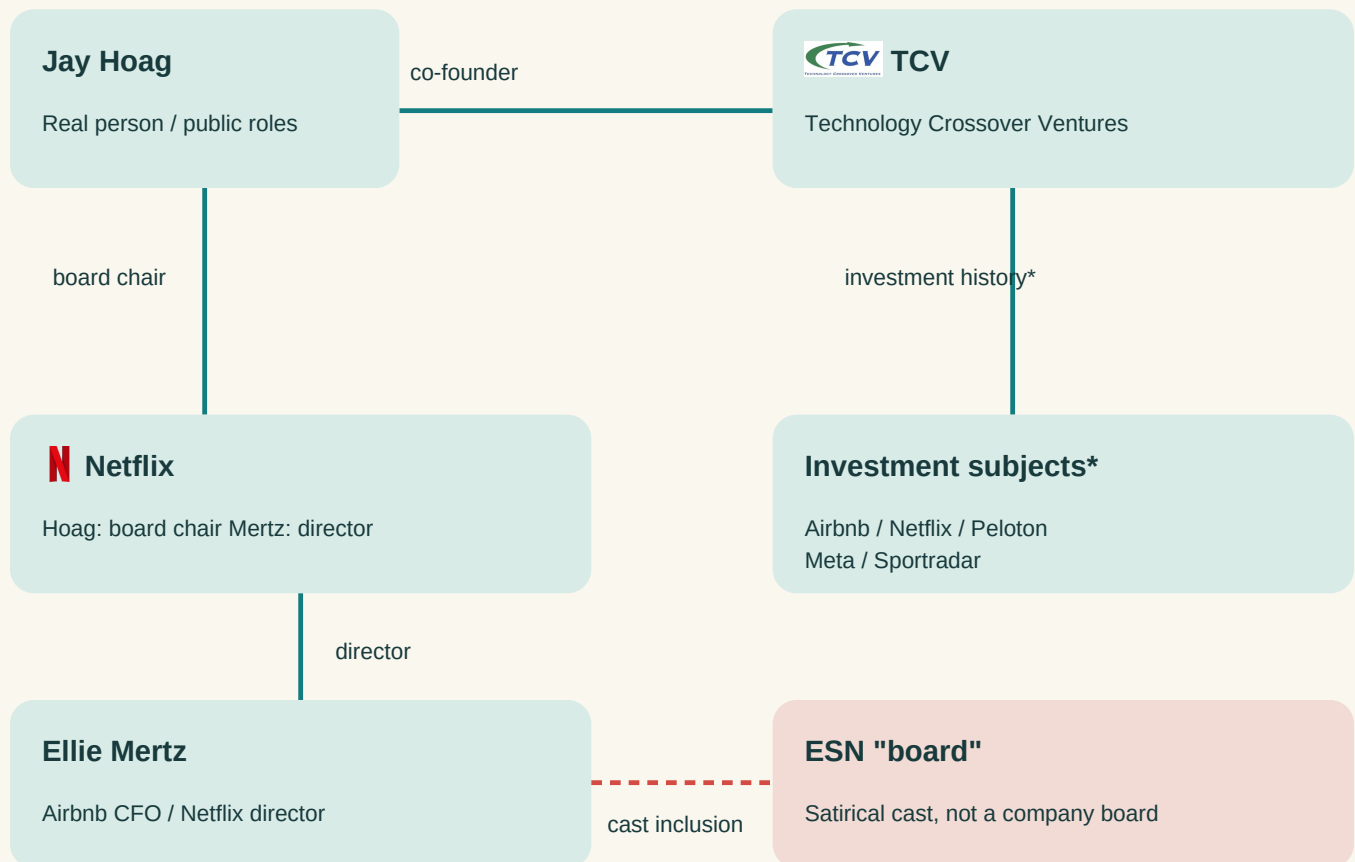

FIRSTHAND ACCOUNT / ALLEGATION. Wednesday's experience or a party's accusation. Attribute it; seek corroboration and responses.

OPEN QUESTION / SPECULATION. The overarching TCV conspiracy, inferred motives, and shared-control theories could be investigated, but are not established by corporate overlap.

SATIRE / MYTHOLOGY. The fictional ESN board, Chairgnome, Anti-Life Equation, demonic backstories, and comic character nicknames belong to the artistic frame. Literal claims of cover-ups, retaliation, or unlawful AI use remain allegations unless supported; comic packaging does not verify them.

A small wall, with a key

A relationship map rather than a Venn diagram: a line can name a specific connection. Corporate affiliation does not establish knowledge, intent, or participation in misconduct.

* TCV's Hoag biography lists his involvement in investments in these companies. This is investment history, not a claim of present ownership or control of every company. Green lines: public corporate roles/history. Dashed red line: inclusion in the site's satire.

The ESN cast also includes Ted Sarandos ("A.I. Ted"), Greg Peters, Josh Harris, Adam Silver, and Carsten Koerl. Their inclusion is Wednesday's editorial choice. It does not establish an actual ESN organization, criminal partnership, or participation in Epstein's crimes.

Serious questions. Specific records.

These summaries preserve the attached October 8 evidence guide's limits. They are a route into the sources, not a fresh independent verification of all underlying claims.

01 / AIRBNB & OPEN AIR HOMES

Records described. The guide reports 2024 email screenshots showing drug-activity warnings, management assurances, acknowledgment of cleaners entering the wrong property, and Airbnb escalation. Milenio separately reports a rental dismantled before police arrived.

Question and limit. Who knew what, and who directed cleanup? Greiner denies intentional concealment. The records do not establish that Airbnb executives ordered a lab removed. Original communications, management terms, damage evidence, and the signed settlement remain important.

02 / NETFLIX & ACTRA: PERFORMER RIGHTS

Records described. VDS announced competition and supported privacy complaints over Netflix AI-training terms; BFFS distinguishes training input from synthetic output. ESN describes ACTRA negotiations and a Berlin rider; the archived demonstration describes facial retargeting.

Question and limit. What did performers authorize, and how were recordings used? The unpublished rider was not independently inspected. Non-SAG can still mean ACTRA-union. Complaints are not regulator rulings; facial retargeting does not prove voice cloning; the material does not establish a corrupt exchange.

Berlin / ACTRA account

03 / NETFLIX: THE EMPLOYMENT CHRONOLOGY

Records described. The Berlin Files reconstructs January 2024 warnings, management correspondence, January 22 feedback, termination the next morning, and counsel's later retaliation allegation.

Question and limit. Were suspected legal violations reported, and did they contribute to termination? Timing warrants scrutiny but does not decide the case. Complete personnel records and later-interference evidence were not independently reviewed.

The Berlin Files

04 / DUB SCHOOL: TRAINING OR PAID CAREER ACCESS?

Records described. The operator advertises five days at $2,000, Dubbing Brothers collaboration, and career opportunities. Dispatch #6 preserves instructor and participant material. California's 2023-2026 bond lists showed no match under the searched school and studio names.

Question and limit. Lawful instruction or covered paid career-access services? Contracts, casting practices, legal identity, bond/deposit, and educational exemptions matter. A name search does not establish a violation; collaboration does not prove Netflix directed one.

Before a headline becomes a conclusion

Fentanyl: the reported 15 kilograms and estimated 7.5 million potentially fatal doses concern the first two locations, not a measured quantity from the home. Reporting does not establish "the largest lab."

🔗 Peloton: the fatal child was six, not three. The $19.065 million CPSC settlement and shareholder litigation naming Hoag are safety and governance records, not a personal homicide finding. Attribute stock sales individually.

 Sportradar: the company disputes a securities suit. Connecticut said SportRadar Solutions and NBC Connecticut were not under investigation when it sought information. Partnerships do not establish unlawful targeting of children.

Epstein-related material: correspondence and proposed payments need context; association alone does not establish participation in another person's crimes.

NEW HERE? TAKE THE SCENIC ROUTE.

Read the introduction, explore one wall brick, then compare its claims with the Evidence Edition. Try the Berlin Files for a chronology. Return to the art and Dispatches with the reading key in mind.

REPORTING? FOLLOW THE DOCUMENT.

Start with the Evidence Edition and Berlin Files. Follow dated exhibits to originals; distinguish testimony, allegations, responses, settlements, and rulings. Check current case status and request missing records before publication.

A note from the rabbit: Be curious. Be precise. Enjoy the strange bits. The conspiracy wall can connect the story; evidence must support each claim. Same questions. More angles. Onward!

Source basis: the supplied two-page Codex evidence guide, dated 8 October 2026; Yoyodub's introduction, homepage, Legend and ESN Staff for editorial context; public corporate sources cited on page 3. Some private records and media were unavailable in the source review. This edition preserves those limits. Names of corporate subjects imply no affiliation or endorsement.
