WEEK 6 RECAP • WEEK 7 PREVIEW

TWO PERFECT TEAMS. ONE LUCKY BABY.

Mike Roy owns the Septic Tank. Tommy Rego may have found the league's smallest good-luck charm.

THE UNDEFEATED ISSUE

Stars & Bars dropped 132.60 on Last Mohican and moved to 6-0 with a staggering 259.74-point scoring cushion. Mike Roy is not merely leading the Septic Tank; he has installed a penthouse, ordered room service and stopped acknowledging the smell below.

Across the tavern, Tommy Rego's BABY RUTH reached 6-0 by dismantling Dirty D's, 106.50-69.88. The team name is not a candy-bar gag. Tommy and his family recently welcomed baby Ruth, and the Tribune's official investigation has found a direct correlation between newborn luck and undefeated fantasy football. Tommy may not be sleeping, but his lineup apparently is not either.

AROUND THE FIVE-TIER LADDER

High score: Stars & Bars, 132.60 • Low score: Soggy Bottom Boys, 48.10 • Biggest margin: Stars & Bars by 53.96 • Chubby Chacers' perfect run ended • Commissioner's Fraud Watch reopened after Touchdown Syndrome! scored 79.38.

SEPARATE WOOL DESK

Black Sheep remains separate: 12 teams, half-PPR. Daks Sack is 6-0; Benoiting survived by 0.40.

WEEK 7 WATCH

Touchdown Syndrome!	102.6 - 88.9 Cook Brown Rice
Bobs 39point team	110.3 - 104.4 Some Dumb Squad
Forever SOCO	91.2 - 105.2 Put on a wig
Back in the Pitts	103.2 - 95.9 Unholy Alliance
Dear Mr. Fantasy	101.3 - 95.4 Blue Team

THE STORY

The commissioner's weekly crusade against fake contenders finally arrived at headquarters. Dear Mr. Fantasy handled Touchdown Syndrome! 112.40-79.38, turning a 4-1 record into evidence marked Exhibit A. The Ja'Marr Chase trade curse has not been formally lifted, and Nico Collins plus Chuba Hubbard continue to haunt the building like two very productive ghosts. Mike's Dear Mr. Fantasy now stands alone at 5-1 and has earned the right to ask whether the loudest fraud investigator was investigating himself.

TAVERN NOTES

Blue Team recovered from last week's one-point Monday-night heartbreak and beat Unholy Alliance. Bob quietly moved to 4-2, presumably saving all commentary for his next song. Week 7's cleanest test is Bob against Some Dumb Squad; the winner keeps real control of the chase behind Mike. The commissioner gets Cook Brown Rice and a chance to prove the badge is not plastic.

STRANGE BUT TRUE

Anthony Caton countered a trade but clicked Brenton Strange when he meant Parker Washington. The deal completed. Nick Downey had every right to keep the accidental advantage. Instead, he allowed Anthony to fix it.

Final result: Dirty D's received Ja'Marr Chase and Brenton Strange. No Name received Javonte Williams and Parker Washington. It was the rare TCT transaction in which the mistake was real, the correction was voluntary and Nick left the story looking honorable. League investigators have confirmed this is still the same Nick Downey.

THE RUTH EFFECT

Newborn Ruth has now witnessed six straight wins, zero losses and one father trying to set waivers while holding a bottle. Soco Dave gets the next chance to test whether baby luck travels.

Captain Jahmyrica	83.3 - 95.6 Jalen Lamb
Kat's Kittys	97.6 - 83.9 GillisTime
Legal Eagles	84.6 - 104.0 Dirk Digglers

THE STORY

Chace Jabotte's perfect run ended at the hands of Jalen had a little Lamb, 95.12-75.82. That opened the door for Portuguese mosquitos 2.0, and Steve Estrella flew through it with a division-high 112.40. Chubby and the Mosquitos are both 5-1, but the points race belongs to Steve by more than one hundred. Chace remains projected for a Week 7 rebound, which should postpone at least one dramatic declaration that the entire fantasy season is rigged.

TAVERN NOTES

Kat Downey earned her first win, proving the household contains at least one manager capable of turning a difficult start into something useful. GillisTime fell to 0-6, though Matt Gill remains only one meme away from controlling the conversation. Tim Calvao beat Fuel Man and continues the annual cycle of threatening retirement, being denied permission and winning games anyway.

Auto Draft	82.4 - 100.7 Soggy Bottom
Stars & Bars	81.4 - 108.8 Courtney
Aubrey's Angels	105.3 - 62.4 Real Mike Stephens

THE STORY

Stars & Bars delivered the week's highest score and largest five-tier victory, beating Last Mohican by 53.96. At 6-0, Mike Roy owns the best point differential in the ladder and has turned a poolside pose into a governing philosophy: remain calm, hold both drinks and let everybody else panic. The only concern is Week 7, where Yahoo projects Courtney's Maye I take your hat sir? to beat him comfortably. Perfection finally has a real appointment.

TAVERN NOTES

Soggy Bottom Boys scored 48.10, the week's lowest total among the five standard divisions, then watched The Real Mike Stephens win with only 68.90. Young Nillas climbed back to .500. Wild Pony and Young Nillas enter Week 7 separated by barely two projected points-a matchup built for late-Sunday regret.

DEAD-BOTTOM

Nobody escaped clean, but FHS B&E owns the ladder rung.

Girth Brooks	96.0 - 95.6 Stu
Peter NorthStars	82.9 - 90.3 Off Constantly
Damnn Daniel	102.7 - 92.7 Commish Exempt

THE STORY

Jeff Sinko's FHS B&E Woodworks moved to 5-1 with another workmanlike win, while Off Constantly stayed one game back by surviving Kenny's Team. The division's Week 7 spotlight belongs to Girth Brooks against Stu: the projections differ by less than half a point, which is exactly enough room for one manager to spend Monday night blaming a kicker, a coach and modern statistics.

TAVERN NOTES

The transaction desk also recorded a bold exchange: Stu's Maddux sits when he pees acquired Ollie Gordon II and sent Malik Nabers to The Peter NorthStars. Peter is 1-5 and needed a swing; Stu is 4-2 and apparently decided a calm roster was incompatible with his brand. Damnn Daniel carries the division's strongest Week 7 projection.

A.J. Brown - ankle; limited, Thursday status uncertain.
Lamar Jackson - ankle; return to practice possible, Week 7 uncertain.
Saquon Barkley - hamstring; still sidelined entering the week.
Davante Adams, Romeo Doubs and Terry McLaurin - significant Week 6 injuries; immediate replacement plans required.
Drake Maye - right shoulder; listed as a probable/full-practice trajectory.
TreVeyon Henderson - ankle; trending toward availability.

Statuses can change quickly. Recheck official designations before kickoff.

Buffalo, Jacksonville, the Los Angeles Chargers and Washington are off. A healthy player on a bye still scores exactly as much as an injured one left in the lineup.

TRANSACTION LEDGER

BACKROOM: No Name and Dirty D’s completed the two-step correction after Anthony selected Strange instead of Washington. Nick allowed the fix.
DEAD-BOTTOM: Stu acquired Ollie Gordon II; Peter NorthStars acquired Malik Nabers.

POLICE BLOTTER

• Fraud unit reopened at the commissioner’s residence. • Nick Downey cited for suspiciously decent behavior. • A missing night’s sleep was reported at Tommy Rego’s home; newborn Ruth declined comment. • Mike Roy was seen holding two drinks and a 6-0 record. No charges filed.

THE TCT TRIBUNE

COMMISSIONER'S CORNER • TCT HISTORY

SIX AND OH-NO

Perfect starts. Imperfect endings.

THE FIVE-TIER HISTORY

Before this season, only two teams in the five-tier ladder had ever opened 6-0. Rob Fredericks' 2024 Legal Eagles finished the regular season 10-4 and ended second. Mike Quinn's 2025 Fuel Man also finished 10-4 and ended third. Both were excellent. Neither won the belt.

That makes Stars & Bars and BABY RUTH the third and fourth five-tier teams ever to reach 6-0. Twenty-five team-seasons have produced a winning streak of at least six games somewhere along the road, but starting 6-0 is a different animal. Three more teams reached 5-0 before losing Week 6: Michael's Legit Team and Men of Steel in 2019, and Dirty D's in 2023. Chubby Chacers IV joined that list this week.

The lesson is not that 6-0 means nothing. It means the hard part changes. Every opponent now circles your matchup. Every lineup decision becomes evidence. Perfection buys attention, not a championship.

BLACK SHEEP ARCHIVE - KEPT SEPARATE

Black Sheep has its own six-pack of perfect starts: My Taser Mello (2015, third); No Days Off (2017, champion); Squirtle Squad (2018, champion); MattSobral is a Cuck (2021, second); Middle Finger Emoji (2022, second); and now Daks Sack (2026, still writing the ending). Two champions in five completed examples. Different league size, different scoring, separate record book.

To Mike Roy and Tommy Rego: congratulations. The history book has opened a tab.
