2003 April 9 19:24:00 I'll save myself the trouble and post lists for one day, every day. . .

think of it as a way to stretch the girl a little more! Here's the question. ~~juyelzze~~ When does Virgo actually start? According to this book, August 24 I don't know how flexible it is, but I'll start on the 24th. I'll never add the 23rd if anyone gets upset. Here is the first Virgo entry from the book: August 24: Penetrated Examination Day. Those born on August 24 and 24 have a desire to solve the mysteries that interest them. They are attracted to all dark, obscure or unknown areas of human knowledge. On this day, they are born not only in human states, but also often seek objective knowledge about themselves - philosophical or scientific, material or theoretical. Their endless search for information and tidbits that can help them think about life and enrich their world will take them far. Difficulties are natural for people born on August 24. ~~nupzacorü~~ Paradoxes and pulps of all kinds are their forte. To say that they sometimes have a hard time keeping up, so I don't say anything. TLove often lacks the ability to understand one's motives, true feelings and needs. But when people are accused of masking, complicating or avoiding questions, people often react with shock and denial on August 24. Even literally dig in the ground, look at the forests, find the sky and fear the depths of the oceans, explore the wonders of nature. During the holidays, most people can't choose that August 24th. Something completely new would open up for them. Your hobbies, and perhaps even your career, reflect this desire to discover yourself. 24s can be good parents, so it's an interesting interest in their children's development.

Nevertheless, you must try to provide the privacy and living space that everyone needs. This means that you must have your own tendency to overload your children's behavior and possibly stifle your own life. 24 people would have managed to simplify their lives as much as possible and avoid the great infinite complexity that they not only discover, but often create themselves. You should also try to affect life around them as low as possible. Your relationships will improve significantly if you think about leaving your friends and loved ones on your devices.
