NEW STATION SET TO IMPROVE RESPONSE TIMES

November 21, 2025, marked a historic day for the City of Spring Hill as elected officials and Spring Hill Fire Department staff officially cut the ribbon on Fire Station No. 4.

Located at the corner of Buckner Lane and Duplex Road, Fire Station No. 4 is the first two-story firehouse in Spring Hill and is the first new fire station to open in the City since 2015. Fire Station No. 4 has 13 bunk rooms for staff on shift and nine total bathrooms, along with a dedicated office and bunk room for the Battalion Chief on shift. The living quarters come equipped with a full kitchen, training area, workout room, and more.

"Today is a milestone for Spring Hill," said Mayor Matt Fitterer. Mitchell Earwood Fire Station No. 4 strengthens our city in every way — it improves response times for our residents, provides our firefighters with the modern facility they deserve, creates space for additional EMS units, and reflects years of planning and investment by the Board of Mayor and Aldermen, City Administration, and Staff. This station is a commitment to keeping our community safe as we continue to grow."

Fire Station No. 4 is named the "Mitchell Earwood Memorial Station" in honor of former Spring Hill Firefighter Mitchell Earwood. Mitchell tragically lost his life in a weather-related incident on May 3, 2020.

Mitchell was hired by the Spring Hill Fire Department in November 2008 and served as a firefighter on Rescue 62 until his passing. Mitchell's gear will be on display in the entryway of the new firehouse, alongside a photo wall consisting of some of our favorite memories with Mitchell.

"Mitchell's spirit and memory lives on through SHFD today, and he will forever be enshrined in Fire Station No. 4," said Fire Chief Graig Temple. "We are proud to have had Mitchell's family's support throughout the construction process, and we hope this project will stand as a lasting tribute to his service, dedication, and the legacy he left behind."

Fire Station No. 4 will house multiple fire apparatus and other utility vehicles, helping dramatically improve response times to nearby neighborhoods.

Cantaloupes loom the largest in the lore of Culleoka. The Culleoka Produce Company office is shown above the horse in the image above; over the back of the wagon, it can be read "Smith Bros." on the glass store window. This was the same business as "M. S. Smith."

The heyday of "Culleoka Cantaloupes" were from 1907 to 1935, but in the years that followed, many people still continued to grow melons around Culleoka, like Bernery Hobbs, Jr. shown above with some of his harvest.

A JOURNEY INTO THE PAST

PAM WINDSOR

Whether he's writing books, speaking to local groups, or leading a ghost or cemetery tour, Adam Southern is always highlighting Maury County's unique and storied past.

His latest book focuses on the small community of Culleoka.

Titled "Looking Back at Culleoka," it's full of photos and fascinating stories about some of the ways it made its mark on history through the years.

"I grew up here," Southern says. "And right now if you drive through Culleoka and you blink, you miss it. It's a store and a post office; we don't even have a stoplight. But at one time, this was a thriving little community."

He was in the seventh grade when he got his introduction to what made this area of Maury County so special.

"I had a teacher named Jane McNaron, who taught a class on Culleoka history," he says. "If it wasn't for her, I wouldn't have ever found an interest in local history. So, this book is kind of a nod to her."

He spent two years going through local archives and family collections, looking for photos, archives, and personal accounts of some of the things he'd heard about through the years. At one time, Culleoka was home to a well-known school now located in Belt Buckle. A famous Tennessee senator got his start as a school-teacher here, and it was once known for a particular fruit.

"The Culleoka Cantaloupe really put the town on the map," Southern says. "The brothers who came up with the Culleoka Cantaloupes were great marketers. They started giving their cantaloupes to the L&N passenger cars that came through town. They said, hey, let's serve them to every guest on the train. When you serve them a meal, give them a cantaloupe. It really got their product in front of consumers."

Those cantaloupes were known so far and wide, Southern actually found items with their logo as far away as Europe.

"We found shipping labels in the collection of the University of Oxford in England," he explains. "So, this book really has been an international effort. That was the biggest shock to me from this entire project."

Other interesting bits of history include the origin of Culleoka's name. It's a Native American word for sweet water, given the area's many springs. Tennessee Congressman Percy Priest got his start as a schoolteacher in Culleoka. And the Webb School, which eventually moved to Belt Buckle, Tennessee got its start in this small community. It ended up moving over a disagreement between local merchants selling alcohol to some of the school students, and William "Sawney" Webb taking great measures to make them stop.

Southern thoroughly enjoyed putting "Looking Back at Culleoka" together.

"I like telling stories using pictures," he says. "They're a helpful tool in showing how things used to be. We have photos showing buildings that are no longer there, schools that have come and gone, people who've come through town, lived there, and since passed. There are around 500 images along with written history, so even if you're not from Culleoka, I think you'll take something away from it."

The book is available at local stores in Columbia, on Amazon, or Southern's website at adamsouthern.com/.

BOOK TRAIL NOW OPEN

Families can enjoy a brand-new way to read and explore the outdoors with the opening of a Storybook Trail at Peacock Hill Nature Park.

Created through a partnership between the Williamson County Public Library and Williamson County Parks and Recreation, the trail combines the joy of reading with the beauty of nature. Pages from The Busy Tree by Jennifer Ward are displayed on signs along the half-mile trail, allowing children and families to experience the story as they walk together.

The project was made possible through a grant from the Governor's Early Literacy Foundation and support from the Williamson County Public Library Foundation.

Peacock Hill Nature Park is located at 6990 Giles Hills Road, College Grove, TN 37046.

The Storybook Trail is free and open to the public during park hours. For more information about the trail or other Library initiatives, visit wcpltn.org. GELF mission: To strengthen early literacy in Tennessee. For more information on the Storybook Trail program, visit governorsfoundation.org.

Williamson County Library Foundation President Clay Perry, board members Melinda Pulliam, Janine Moore, WCPL Trustee Jessica Robb, and her daughter.

Mayor Rogers Anderson, Williamson County Public Library Systems Director Jessica Jeffers, & Parks & Rec's Gordon Hampton

The ribbon is cut for the grand opening.

Commissioner Judy Herbert, Janine Moore, Jessica Jeffers, Amanda Jones, Kerri Hudson, Delois Bratten
