EXPERIENCE SPRING HILL

The Spring Hill Chamber of Commerce is inviting the community to one of the city's most anticipated events of the year as the Experience Spring Hill Business Expo & Job Fair returns on Saturday, June 13, 2026, from 10:00 AM to 2:00 PM at Battle Creek High School.

Free and open to the public, Experience Spring Hill is more than a business expo; it is a high-energy event designed to showcase the people, businesses, services, and growth shaping one of Tennessee's fastest-growing cities.

With more than 4,000 attendees expected, the event brings together local businesses, restaurants, healthcare providers, nonprofits, home services, retailers, fitness studios, financial professionals, city departments, and employers, all under one roof for a Saturday filled with entertainment, interaction, and local connection.

"This event gives people the chance to truly experience Spring Hill," said the CEO of the Spring Hill Chamber of Commerce.

"Whether you are looking for your next favorite local business, a new job opportunity, family activities, or simply something fun to do on a Saturday, this event was designed for you."

New for 2026, the Experience Spring Hill Job Fair will connect job seekers with employers actively hiring across a variety of industries. Attendees will have the opportunity to meet directly with local companies, explore career paths, and learn more about the businesses investing in Spring Hill's future.

Those attending with children can enjoy the Family Fun Zone featuring kid-friendly activities, interactive booths, Touch-a-Truck experiences, games, giveaways, and hands-on fun designed to keep children entertained while parents explore the Expo.

One of the most popular areas of the event is the City Hall corridor, where attendees can meet representatives from City departments, including Parks and Recreation, Police, Fire, and other public services. Residents will have the opportunity to ask questions, gather information, and better understand the resources available throughout the city.

The Expo also gives attendees the opportunity to support local businesses in a meaningful way through face-to-face conversations and real connections that go beyond social media and online searches.

"This is the kind of event where you walk in expecting to stay an hour and end up spending the day," organizers shared. "You leave with new connections, new favorite businesses, and a deeper appreciation for the city you live in."

Linda Dyer, on a recent visit to Leiper's Creek Gallery in Leiper's Fork is known for her involvement with PBS's Antique Roadshow. Photography by Michael Tedesco

A PASSION FOR HISTORY

PAM WINDSOR

She's a familiar face to fans of the long-running, popular PBS series Antiques Roadshow, where she serves as a specialist in Native American art. And while she's recognized globally for her expertise in Tribal Arts, Linda Dyer's talents expand to other areas, as well. She's also a general appraiser, broker, and consultant in fine arts and antiques.

Her fascination with antiques, art, and artifacts began as a young child growing up in Boston.

"I grew up at a time where you'd open a door in the morning, and your parents would tell you to be back for dinner," she recalls with a laugh. "And you were off and running. When I was, I think around eleven, I used to get on buses, they had a great bus and subway system, and I'd go down to the Harvard campus and spend time at the Harvard museums. Then, when I got older, I'd go into the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston and wander through the halls."

Back then, she was especially drawn to ancient Egyptian exhibits. Later, when a good friend got a job developing a gift shop at Harvard's Peabody Museum of Ethnology, Dyer devoted a lot of time to helping out. It allowed her access to a wealth of knowledge.

"There was a time when museums were just gigantic glass cases with handwritten cards, and I was captivated by everything I saw."

While Dyer would later go to school to become a nurse, she remained dedicated to pursuing her passion for art history and antiques. She eventually left nursing full-time and got a job at a major auction house.

"I was working as a nurse for 12-hour weekends. Then I'd work at an auction house about four days a week as a consultant and building a department for them."

It gave her an invaluable education from people who were standouts in many different fields.

"I was surrounded by everything, not just my specialty, and I got to learn from the masters of this ilk. There were some tremendous people there that have since passed on. But they were all engaging human beings who were absolutely willing to share what they knew.”

Photography by Michael Tedesco

Dyer credits her love of art to her mother and father, whose own parents fled the genocide in Armenia. She said her mom and dad, who grew up during the Depression, had an “eye” and appreciation for art and passed it on to her. As far as her becoming a specialist in Native American Art, that has a lot to do with her father, who traveled while serving in the Air Force.

“He’d travel on a troop train across the U.S., and while other people would send home satin pillows that said, ‘Made in Taiwan,’ he was always buying things woven into the experience. He bought a lot of Native American jewelry and pieces of pottery for my mom. So, I developed a fascination with the American West.”

Her expertise shines through on the Antiques Roadshow. Through the years, she’s had the chance to evaluate a wide range of artifacts.

“People come and share their different stories,” she says. “The show is part adventure, part history lesson, and part treasure hunt. And who wouldn’t enjoy that?”

When she’s not traveling for PBS, she shifts to her expertise as a generalist, working as a consultant for auction houses, companies, and individuals, trying to determine the value of many types of items.

“What I do the most here in Tennessee is help people divest their homes, whether it be an estate or just a collection. Because you can have the True Cross or the Hope Diamond, but if you don’t know where to place it, you can make a big mistake.”

Dyer says there’s a kindred spirit between those who share a love of history and items that tell the story of a time gone by. At one point, Mike Wolfe (of American Pickers), now a friend, consulted with her before he developed his show. There’s something special that draws like-minded people together.

“We’re all cut from the same cloth,” she says. “My colleagues on the Antiques Roadshow are the most passionate, adventurous, romantics - all fascinated by history. And every time we go on tour, it’s like going off to summer camp.”

If you’d like to contact Linda Dyer regarding her appraising or consulting services, you can email her at ledyer256@aol.com or call (615) 791-9242.

A special thanks to Leiper’s Creek Gallery in Leiper’s Fork for allowing us to use their gallery for our photography for this story.

Great RECIPES

Easy Baby Back Ribs

From the kitchen of Jeff & Karen Bryant

PREP:

Remove the thin, papery membrane (silver skin) from the back of the ribs. Apply yellow mustard on the meat as a binder coating the ribs (rub the mustard on with your hands for best result).

APPLY A DRY RUB:

Use your favorite dry rub recipe or purchase a dry rub and apply liberally on the ribs, patting the seasoning into the mustard to help it adhere to the meat.

Use an indirect cooking method if using a charcoal grill instead of a smoker. Move all your hot coals to one side and place the ribs on the opposite side. Place 2-3 hickory wood chunks (or your favorite wood) on top of the charcoal. Soaking the wood for a few hours in water will add additional smoke and slower cooking. Keep the lid closed to allow the ribs to cook and smoke. A smoke box can be used on a gas grill for similar results.

Allow the meat to cook/smoke on the charcoal grill for 2-3 hours absorbing the smoke from the wood.

THE WRAP TRICK:

For maximum tenderness finish the ribs in the oven. Pre-heat oven to 275°. Using heavy-duty aluminum foil or two sheets of regular foil, use enough to wrap the rack of ribs, place butter pats along the foil (one tbsp each pat), place the ribs meat side down on top of the pats of butter and wrap tightly, cook until bone pulls easily from the meat (check after 2 hours), or until the internal temperature of the meat is 205°.

Rest the meat. Let the ribs sit for at least 15 minutes before cutting. This allows the juices to redistribute.

Comebacks And Counting.

Tennessee Orthopaedic Alliance is Tennessee's largest and most comprehensive orthopedic provider, with a legacy of care dating back to 1926. What began as Nashville's first orthopedic clinic—founded by Dr. George Carpenter, Sr. and known locally as “the carpenter shop”—has grown into a statewide organization serving communities across Middle, Southern and East Tennessee.

For a century, TOA has supported the health and mobility of an estimated 10 million patients, helping individuals and families live more active, fulfilling lives.
