Located along route 507 in Georgia as you are departing, Fort Moore is a delightful fruit and a vegetable stand. You will be hard-pressed to miss the mini signs along the road pointing to Mark's watermelon patch. Don't let the name fool you. It has a lot more than water melons.

Mark's has a complete line of vegetables, fruit, nuts, sundries, even fresh, homemade ice cream. It's a great place to stop to get fresh, organic food.

Parking is located in the back as well as to the side of the venue. It's a down home country atmosphere, and a great place to bring a family. You can wander around and look at some of the authentic Georgia country settings.

What Georgia fruit stand would be complete without boiled peanuts. These were delicious and inexpensive. If you can try to eat them before you depart and drive. If you try to eat them while you drive, make sure you have plenty of napkins. Either way they're great and delicious.

Marc's has all types of vegetables, fruit, pickled jars, and other sundries. If you can't find it here, then it may not exist. They have jellies, pickled vegetables, and other delicious food.

The atmosphere lends itself to purchasing products that you may not have ever wanted to try. On a nice day, you will be shoulder to shoulder with other shoppers. There will be no shortage of interest for passersby when it comes to this fruit stand. I can definitely see on a future trip if I were in this area that I would plan on stopping again.

We bought a little bit of everything. We tried some pickled quail, eggs, as well as green beans. We bought a very strange yellow melon that we had never seen before. We also got fresh pecans, which are buttery and not like the ones that are shipped.

As stated, even the ice cream is made from local fruit. You just can't beat it. Definitely stop here with your family. You will not regret it. If you're in this part of Georgia, make time for Mark's watermelon patch.
