

250113 BRA H&H RESTAURANT SOUTHERN COOKING MACON GA

H&H Southern Cooking; why bother? Here's a great example I'm finding a unique place to have lunch while driving down an Interstate. I could have easily stopped at the rest area, McDonald's or any other national chain. But this is an opportunity to do something different. This is well worth your time, is very close to the highway and provides an unforgettable experience.

Now you may not like southern cooking. That could be, but I would give this a try. Many people don't even know what southern cooking is. At H&H restaurant you have the ability to eat real southern cooking. This restaurant has been open since the 1950s. You can't help but have a good meal here.

If you're looking for fancy décor then this may not be the place for you. But if you want authentic, organic family owned restaurant environments then you're in the right place. H&H has been family run since its founding. You get the feel of this when you're in the restaurant. The place has not changed much as you can see.

But what they failed to have in décor they more than make up for in the quality of food. The service is prompt and efficient. The food is spot on good classic southern cooking.

It's a who's who of who's been to this restaurant. You just have to go up and down the walls. And yes that is Aretha Franklin.

We were new to the restaurant so it was hard to stop gaping. Most people are locals and they kind of look at you like; yeah that's a newbie.

It's not often that I display bathroom art. But the restaurant is chock full of art of different types. Everywhere you look there are mementos. I am sure that they have many more than can be displayed in this small restaurant stored away somewhere. But I thought this was pretty cute.

What to order. That's easy at this restaurant. That's because the menu is really simple. One page, 3 or 4 entrees and not much more.

But that makes ordering simpler and makes your experience more authentic. If you were looking for The Cheesecake Factory menu then again this is not your place.

As you can see I am more than satisfied. And like most American restaurants today two people can order one entrée and have more than enough food. I would recommend you do this or order two different entrees and share.

My wife is from the South and she can attest that this was good authentic southern food. The fried chicken was as good as you can get, the collard greens were exactly the way that she would make them at home.

Atmosphere is everything and uh H&H restaurant delivers. Very simple and to the point the customer experience is genuine and organic.

The food is served quick and hot. I don't think you could go wrong with any of the entrees that are on the menu. Take your time and enjoy.

This was the table that The Allman Brothers sat at when they were at the restaurant. It's one of many of the artifacts that you'll see on the walls.

H&H is almost a who's who in southern music. There are lots of groups that have come in and out of this restaurant in the past. It's good that they kept the record of this and show people for it increases the value of the locale.

You can also see that the restaurant is very active in the local community. There are lots of events that have been held here and you can see some of the children's artwork from some previous activities.

Yes that's The Allman Brothers as well. They were here but my wife is quick to point out that they were from Daytona Beach FL. She knows because they went to school with her sister.

These are some of the other musical icons that have come through the restaurant. I am sad to say and ignorant in describing who they all are; one seems to be Greg Allman.

I'm sure they are famous but I can't tell you. I suppose I should have asked but like I said most of the people there are locals and they look at you like a tourist when you're standing there asking questions about anything other than what's on the menu.

So please stop by. Don't lose this chance to see some Americana up close and personal. The good thing about locations like this is you can not only have some nostalgia but a good lunch at the same time.

H&H restaurant in Macon is the real deal. You can't go wrong and you may learn something about southern food. Worth the stop.
