

MEET JAVONNE STEWARD!

Javonne Steward is a speaker, founder, certified behavioral coach, and devoted mother who values leadership, creativity, and excellence. Javonne is the founder of, No Excuse Today LLC, a personal development company centered around consulting, advising and apparel that reinforces the mindset "No Excuse Today". The company focuses on leadership development and soft skills training. Simultaneously, she is the creator of Pillow Thingy LLC, a novelty pillow company designed to encourage creativity, imagination, and entrepreneurship. In addition, she has also received acclaim for her first children's book which she authored and self-published.

If there's anyone who understands how to create value for people, it's Javonne. She is on a mission to inspire and empower students and future leaders to pursue their dreams and realize their potential. To help her accomplish her mission she became a behavioral science expert. With this skill she has learned to diagnose behavioral patterns that provide teachers, staff, students and organizations with valuable insights to improve their probability of success. As a speaker, she incorporates what she's learned in the delivery of her high-energy sessions that challenge her audiences to leverage their gifts to improve their lives. Javonne brings unique perspectives, empowering her audiences to unleash their untapped potential. Using real-world examples, Javonne sheds light on how our innate talent is invaluable to those we seek to impact. Audiences love her presentations because they leave able to implement her practical strategies, personally and professionally.

Given her accomplishments and trajectory you might not have guessed Javonne spent more than a decade in foster care before being adopted. Despite that experience, she has not only transformed her own life, but she has dedicated her work and purpose to the transformation of others', especially the lives of our younger generations. With a knack for making meaningful connections and an insatiable appetite for helping others maximize their potential, Javonne knows how to rock any stage, connect with the crowd, and provide the necessary instruction for others to do the same.

BECOMING A LEADER

Some people are born with natural leadership capabilities while others learn to lead through experience. Both types of leaders need education. Javonne teaches the characteristics of great leadership. She helps new and emerging leaders overcome common leadership challenges using self development tools and resources. She executes this by teaching individuals and organizations how to amplify their communication skills, connect with one another, and grow their confidence so they can make influential impacts on the world. Javonne mentors these leaders with passion, guiding her clients to effectively strengthen and elevate their leadership vision to new heights.

CRITICISM & REJECTION

As we traverse relationships with family, friends, strangers, organizations, and ourselves, we will consistently face criticism and rejection - both are ever-present. As you can imagine, Javonne has encountered criticism and rejection throughout so many facets of her journey. Her exposure to these factors qualify her to connect with others, meaningfully, to address these issues in our own lives.

KEYNOTE TOPICS

Javonne engages groups from the moment she opens her mouth and leaves them encouraged, having received helpful tools and a renewed mindset that they will use long after the event has ended. Javonne is passionate about people, leadership, children, parenting, and successful businesses. She is especially inspired to help people take their lives - and careers - to unprecedented levels.
