Garrick Percival earned his Ph.D. in political science at the University of California, Riverside in 2005. His work focuses on American and California politics, criminal justice policy, and racial and social inequality. He is the author or co-author of three books: Smart on Crime: The Struggle to Build A Better American Penal System (2015), California Politics and Government: A Practical Approach (15ed, 2021), and California's Recall Election of Gavin Newsom: Covid-19 and the Test of Leadership (2022). He is currently working on two primary projects. The first is focused on local prosecutors and their relationship to California's de-incarceration efforts. The second, a book-length monograph, investigates fractures within the Democratic Party around criminal justice reform.
