Introduction

Dear Friend,

“In the times that we are living in there is much confusion and chaos. So much so that it is difficult for one to truly understand what the purpose of life is. There, of course, are many books regarding this very same subject. What you will find written in the following pages is revealed to us through the Holy Spirit.

We have been receiving messages from the Holy Spirit for over thirty years. Our Heavenly Father has told us we would know when the time was right! And the time is NOW dear friends. It is our fervent prayer this booklet will help you cut to the chase! Yes, to get down to the heart of the matter; that which is the very essence of life. The purpose of life is as our Father says,” is to learn, to serve and to grow!”

If you have happened upon this booklet it is not by chance for you are now being shown that which is the reality.

May God bless and keep you in the days and weeks ahead.”

*Joyfully,
Wendy and Jillian*

Chapter One

The Human Condition

As a citizen of heaven visiting earth your soul understood there were conditions which one must agree to prior to attending the school of Life on earth. These were generally referred to as The Human Condition.

First and foremost, no soul was ever forced to attend the School of Life on earth yet, most souls desired to do so. This provided an opportunity for the soul to experience situations that would enable him to draw ever closer to understanding the heart and mind of their heavenly father.

Every soul, whether in heaven or on earth, is equipped with free will. In heaven all souls desire to follow that which is of the Father's will.

The second condition, which must therefore be agreed to by each soul prior to arriving on earth, would be they do not remember from where they had come. For to do so would prohibit the soul's ability to learn what each needed to advance in their spiritual education.

Every soul was allowed to decide what qualities they wanted to master or become more proficient in. So yes, that which they would cultivate would be those ideals or fruits of the spirit needed (i.e. love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control- NIV-Galatians 5:22-23).

Every soul was therefore able to choose the specific condition they would be born into which would provide them the ideal opportunity to do so. For some these conditions would seem to be the worst one could possibly desire yet, ultimately would be in the soul's best and highest interest affording him the best opportunity to master that which he was longing to complete.

Once the soul agreed to these conditions, he would then be ready to prepare for his earthly education.

Chapter Two

The Preparation

Once a soul had agreed to the terms required (i.e.; human conditions) preparations would begin to prepare each soul for his/her earthly destination.

Terms:

1. Every soul has a history which is recorded in the book of life in heaven. This history keeps an in-depth record of those fruits which each soul has become proficient in and those which need perfecting. These fruits cannot be earned for they are the very ideals which formulate each soul's individual lesson plan.

Every lesson then includes the precise experience that would enable the soul to cultivate the very ideals of our Heavenly Father. Therefore, they cannot be earned they must be learned. The history of each soul reflects those ideals which they are more proficient in and those which they are not. Each soul as a result has a DNA which includes the fruit or fruits he already is proficient in.

2. Unlike those previous skills he has perfected our Heavenly Father then assigns specific spiritual gifts that can neither be learned nor earned! Yes, specific gifts which would assist the soul in his earthly journey! Depending on where the soul is in his soulful education, he may be given one or more gifts! Remember, they cannot be learned nor earned for they are as the Father states a gift from our Heavenly Father.

3. The soul delights in moving forward with his soulful education. As a result, he is given an assignment based on the level of education he has completed! Man will come to refer to this as his earthly purpose for being. This then will be different for each soul depending upon that which he has mastered.

Each soul fully understands at this point the purpose of the school of life is to learn to serve and to grow. Each soul then serves in the capacity of which he has become proficient in.

Chapter Three

The Arrival

The soul is now equipped with those traits which are of his spiritual nature yet, now must learn the principles on how to become proficient in the physical senses needed to operate in the physical.

Principles:

#1. To ensure a successful transition is made from the spiritual to the physical, a guardian angel is assigned to accompany each soul. This provides an assurance and comfort which the young human is fully aware of in the early stages and can often be heard talking to what man would refer to as an imaginary friend.

#2. The transition now to the physical must be learned. It is a steep learning curb for each as these senses were unnecessary as a spiritual being. This requires full attention be given to mastering what is necessary to be fully human. Gradually, the shift becomes so intense the spiritual senses are all but dimmed (i.e.: learning to walk, to talk, to eat, to see, hear, etc.)

#3. As the soul's transition now is fully human, he relies on outside stimuli and as such, is influenced by the world he finds himself in. Gradually, the ego which provides the foundation for his personality directs his attention to that which is reflective of man's nature. He then begins to respond to the standards which man has set. He soon learns to seek those things that will produce the desired emotional response he is seeking. He then relies on outside stimuli which often forms the foundation for what he desires to achieve; that which he pays attention to.

#4. This is a crucial stage for one's soul as depending on what the human concentrates on will either assist him in finding his true purpose or create a barrier to what the soul is desperately trying to complete!

Chapter Four

The Purpose

It is at this point in a soul's journey the ego has become the dominant force in each human. One must remember wisdom is not indicative of age and mortal age is not indicative of wisdom! And so it is, at some point the soul begins to make himself known in ways which he has not been acknowledged by in the past.

#1. Up until now the soul has taken a backseat to the physical and is anxious to assume his rightful place in each human being.

#2. This is when one will begin to question is this all there is?

#3. Even though many had been introduced to the fundamental principles of a higher power through religion, it does not seem to have much effect on one's daily life. As a result, the human begins to experience an increasing restlessness.

#4. There is a longing coming from deep within that cannot seemingly be satisfied and so it is he is no longer content with the world he has built for himself.

#5. He intrinsically feels there must be something more and questions what his own purpose is for being.

#6. Although he does not yet understand he is being influenced by the promptings of his soul, he begins to understand there is much more to his mortal life than what he had previously understood.

#7. Typically, this is influenced by an event or personal experience which has greatly impacted the foundation upon which he had built his life at this point. Yes, the ah ha moments!

#8. He begins to seek that which he has not paid attention to in the past.

#9. And so it is, the second part of his earthly journey begins! One could say he is at a crossroads.

Chapter 5

The Ego Rules

It is at this stage in one's earthly journey one begins to question the very foundation upon which they have built their life. His soul becomes increasingly restless for the person to discover his full potential. Hence the question "who am I really and what am I fully capable of?"

This is a pivotal point in one's earthly journey, albeit, a dangerous one as the ego seeks that which provides self-recognition. In essence, all actions and interest are I centered as all roads lead back to self.

This is a time when one compares his attributes against those who are labeled successful by the standards of others. As a result, he often aspires to become equal to if not better than those who are viewed as successful. Because all success at this point is based on outside stimuli, little time is spent on inward speculation. And so, he seeks outside aspirations versus inside inspiration and as a result he confuses happiness with joy looking to people, places and things to satisfy a longing which comes from deep within his being.

Little consideration is given to his true purpose as there are far too many distractions which have preoccupied his mind keeping him tied to worldly pursuits.

One thing he has discovered, that is constant in life, is that change will most assuredly come at some point. Relationships can change if not altogether be removed through no fault of one's own. For some this can be a life altering event upon which future decisions are made.

As the soul becomes increasingly restless the person seeks after material things hoping to find this happiness which seemingly does not last. A vicious cycle begins as people, places and things change so does his level of happiness!

Chapter Six

The Crossroads

It is at this crossroads one begins to ask the important question who am I really? He is no longer satisfied with the person he has allowed others to see. A person who has been shaped primarily by the reactions and opinions of those around him.

There is an increased desire to separate himself from that which does not allow the deepest desires of his heart to materialize. He is no longer willing to conform to someone else's dreams or desires.

At this point he takes stock of what he is most enthusiastic about! There is an intense longing to redirect his path. He is no longer willing to conform to that which will not allow him to fully express his own uniqueness. Yes, his individual gifts and talents. He is no longer willing to march to the beat of a different drummer. The soul longs for freedom of expression, hence the saying "Free to be me!"

This is a process of self-discovery which is prompted by the Holy Spirit in those who have accepted Christ as their savior. Having opened the lines of communication to the Father, he now starts to see himself and the world through a different set of eyes. It is the same with hearing as he must exercise his spiritual ears to hear what is coming from the sanctuary within. That is why the Bible often refers to one's spiritual senses

This is a newfound freedom of which he has not experienced before. It is one that will enable him to eventually transition from that which is of the physical to his true nature, that which is a spiritual being!

In order to do so he now must utilize his God given talents in conjunction with his spiritual gift/gifts as he moves forward to his true purpose for being; that which is his destiny!

The Conclusion

“Now that you understand the essence of life there is much for you to contemplate. Some would say we are living in the worst of times and others would say the best is yet to come! As a child of God, you belong to Him and He belongs to you as you are created in our Father’s image. There is a new world on the horizon! A world in which we all will play an integral part. It is not a coincidence you have happened upon this booklet for our Father knows that which your soul is destined to complete. It is with this understanding you must now move forward as you proceed with this most important part of your journey. For when you embrace the reality of who you truly are as a spiritual being you will experience a magnitude such as never before on this earth and together, we will become one in our Father’s Spirit as we help prepare the way for His kingdom to reign on earth as it is in heaven!”
