Anita is a neurodivergent woman who founded Living on the Spectrum, Australia's first autism directory and neurodiversity media hub. She has 30+ years in marketing and is a proud parent to three neurodivergent adult children. She advocates for inclusion, self-acceptance and mental health.

Anita shares her life and her journey as a late-diagnosed female. She is eager to share how embracing her neurodiversity and her authentic self has boosted her well-being and mental health.

Her insights are particularly valuable for business owners looking to boost their business's revenue and promote a supportive and inclusive environment for all employees and customers.
