Untraced for the past 137 years, a replacement medal for the original congressional gold medal awarded to Continental Army Brig. Gen. Daniel Morgan for his heroics during the Battle of Cowpens Jan. 17, 1781, has resurfaced.

The unique gold medal, the only known Comitia Americana medal in gold in private hands, is being offered by Stack's Bowers Galleries during the April 4 to 8 sale held in conjunction with the Whitman Baltimore Coin and Collectibles Expo.

The gold medal was authenticated, graded and encapsulated Specimen 63 by Professional Coin Grading Service. The medal has 4.79 ounces of gold. It is estimated to bring between $250,000 and $500,000.

The United States Mint has canceled its plans to strike and release 2022 Morgan and Peace dollars. Production plans for 2022 Morgan and Peace dollars were scrapped because the Mint is unable to secure sufficient quantities of .999 fine silver planchets for minting them.

The Mint intends to resume production and sales of the Morgan and Peace dollars in calendar year 2023, U.S. Mint officials announced March 14.

The price of nickel has gone through the roof. It was costing the Mint just over 8 cents to make a nickel but now with the shortage of nickel prices have jumped and the U.S. nickel has been worth as much as 16 cents per coin.

People are hoarding nickels in the hopes of making a small fortune. What's the worst that could happen, you get back your face value.
