

“A church celebration was held.”

Rev. James Lee

Yesterday, our church enjoyed a wonderful celebration. It was a precious moment in which our beloved brother and sister began a new family together. Yet this celebration became more than a personal event—it became a celebration of the whole church. This was because the entire congregation prepared it together. It is a truly beautiful thing when a loving man and woman meet and form a family. And because such a joyful event took place within our church, I believe it became a reason for all of us to rejoice together. I also witnessed how our members rolled up their sleeves and served wholeheartedly as if it were their own personal event. As a result, the celebration became not just theirs, but the church’s celebration.

It was a time when we could feel just how deeply God loves our church. I am also grateful that through this wedding ceremony, we were able to see and confirm God’s love once again.

For weeks leading up to the wedding, conversations blossomed about the bride’s makeup, the dress, and the food. There is something joyful about doing something together—and even more so when we know that God’s blessing and grace are upon it. It seems to fill people’s hearts with gladness.

As we prepared for this wedding, I found myself wishing that our church would have many more celebrations. In two weeks, we will hold our outdoor worship service. As we prepare for it, I imagine we will once again share many joyful conversations. And what will the next church celebration be after that? I look forward to it with anticipation.

I hope we will continue to share many precious moments together as a congregation. Not only times of gathering to eat and fellowship, but also times of sharing God’s Word and His love. As we remember the grace of Jesus coming to this earth and going to the cross for us, we will hold our early morning prayer meetings during Passion Week. And as we remember the day He rose again, we will prepare a celebration for Resurrection Sunday. My hope is that each day and every hour will become a celebration. I pray that our church will be one in which thanksgiving for God’s grace never ceases.

I bless and pray that God’s abundant grace and blessing will overflow in the home of Deacon Seonghee Lee and Deacon Youngna Shim as they begin their new life together. And I also bless and pray that God’s amazing grace will fill the homes of all our beloved members who share His love through Valley Korean Presbyterian Church. With love.
