

PX 200 – One block at a time!

PX 200 is a small, yet very powerful machine designed to support architects and designers in choosing the right block for their specific needs. From the smallest businesses to multinationals scattered throughout the world, GERVASI is able to satisfy all needs

Thanks to its compact dimensions, the PX 200 can be transported directly to the construction site. With it you can manually dose the colors until you find the right shade and then send the production recipe to the block maker who will produce according to the specific requests.
