Project Advances with Third Online Meeting

The highly anticipated project, "INSPIRE CREATIVITY FOR CREATIVE EUROPE," funded by the Erasmus+ Program of the European Union, continued its momentum as project partners convened for their second online meeting. The virtual gathering, held on March 31, 2022, at 18:00 (UTC+3), served as a platform for in-depth discussions and planning for the project's ongoing activities.

The meeting commenced with RTEU, the project coordinator, reading out the agenda, which encompassed several critical items to be addressed. These included an overall discussion of project activities, deliberations on Activity 1: Desk research, an interim report presentation, planning for the next transnational meeting in France, and closing remarks.

While partners were eagerly anticipating the session, it was noted with regret that METANU, CREATIVA, and HEXAGONALE were unable to attend the meeting. Nonetheless, the remaining partners proceeded with the agenda items, displaying their unwavering commitment to the project's success.

During the meeting, an in-depth discussion took place concerning the project's overall activities. Partners shared updates, exchanged insights, and aligned their efforts to ensure the project's smooth progression. The collaborative spirit and dedication displayed by the participants underscored their shared vision of inspiring creativity and driving innovation across Europe's cultural and creative sectors.

Activity 1, focused on desk research, was another significant topic of discussion. Partners examined the progress made and exchanged ideas on gathering relevant information and insights regarding the current status of the cultural creative sector. These findings will lay the foundation for subsequent project activities and provide valuable insights into the required skills, employment opportunities, and market dynamics within the sector.

The meeting also featured an interim report, highlighting the collective achievements and progress made by the partners thus far. The report offered an overview of the completed tasks, milestones reached, and challenges encountered during the project's implementation. Although METANU, CREATIVA, and HEXAGONALE were unable to participate, their contributions and progress were duly noted and integrated into the interim report.

Looking ahead, the partners engaged in planning discussions for the next transnational meeting, scheduled to take place in France. As METANU, CREATIVA, and HEXAGONALE were absent from the meeting, RTEU took the lead in ensuring the partners' involvement in determining the most suitable dates for the in-person gathering. The collaborative decision-making process aimed to accommodate all partners' schedules and facilitate their active participation in shaping the project's future trajectory.

The meeting concluded with final remarks, expressing appreciation for the participants' dedication and contributions to the project's advancement. Partners reaffirmed their commitment to the project's goals and expressed enthusiasm for the upcoming stages of collaboration.

"INSPIRE CREATIVITY FOR CREATIVE EUROPE" continues to thrive despite the challenges posed by the current circumstances. The project partners remain steadfast in their pursuit of fostering innovation, nurturing talent, and propelling the European creative landscape into new realms of success.
