

Yet

I am confident of this, that the one who began a good work among you will bring it to completion by the day of Jesus Christ. Philippians 1:6

Pastor Bonnie has been preaching from Romans 8 for the past several weeks, and has often talked about those who are not saved...yet. I've been thinking about the word "yet." Here are some thoughts:

Some words we use seem boring, small,
And insignificant.
And "yet" can hearts and minds enthrall
And profound meanings grant.

The power of language is unyielding,
Transforming concepts set;
And can us from despair be shielding:
There always is hope "yet."

When Paul speaks of the ones who know
The Savior sacrificed,
The others "yet" in faith may grow,
Believe in Jesus Christ.

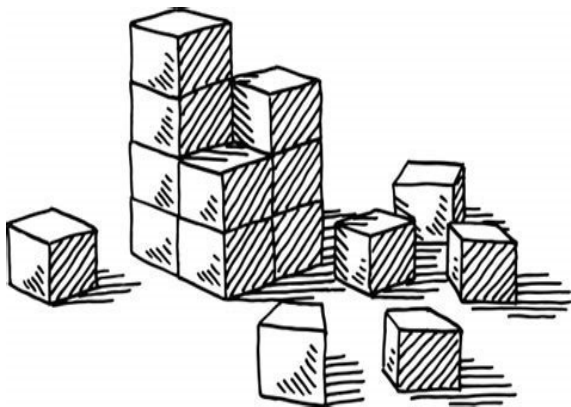

I have done wrong and sinned in life;
So much I do regret.
My guilt and shame cut like a knife,
But God forgives me "yet."

And then the deeds I have not done,
My lies of stark omission,
Must bring such grief to our Lord's son,
And "yet" He grants remission.

I know imperfect as I am,
I do what I abhor;
But still perfected by the Lamb:
"Yet" is my soul restored.

God has begun a good work, yes,
In me and all creation.
God will finish "yet" and bless;
In Christ God grants salvation.

We struggle much in life each day;
Through all, let's not forget
That God will always find a way;
God is not finished "yet"!

*God is not finished
