

Blessed to Believe

“Blessed are those who have not seen and yet believe.” John 20: 29

We live in times of skepticism,
Of doubt and disbelief.
We see life through a broken prism,
Distorted by our grief,
And just like Thomas, we mistrust
What we have not observed.
True faith is built on solid trust,
Submission unreserved.

Such faith demands no evidence,
No proof that can be measured;
Demands no pay or recompense,
But is a trust that's treasured.
Faith is just one ingredient
In life's sweet recipe,
Where effort is not vainly spent
To doubt what we can't see.

We do not see the air we breathe
Or light waves of the day,
Yet still we know and do believe
The life they bring our way.
Thus, even more, let's trust the Lord,
Believe, put doubts to rest,
And then with faith we are assured
That we will be so blessed. Patti Miller
