

Renewal

“...those who wait upon God get fresh strength.
They spread their wings and soar like eagles.” Isaiah 40:31

Life can sometimes weigh us down,
And faith can wane and fade.
We're tied to earth and hopeless ground,
Broken, lost, and frayed.
Yet we have reason to rejoice
And should not be distressed.
For solid faith can be a choice;
Through grace we have been blessed.

The Lord is faithful, steadfast, strong,
Forgiving of our sins.
We are his children; we belong.
With God all life begins.
God's love and mercy have no ending.
God's grace will never cease,
Blessings on us each day descending
To fill our hearts with peace.

When we can learn in God to trust,
We'll leave our fears behind.
We'll shake off cares like pesky dust;
Renewed, new hope we'll find.
Each broken heart will heal and sing,
And blue will be life's sky.
Our spirits then will soar with wings
Like eagles flying high. Patti Miller
