

All Your Faces

You left me with ouns

I tried fleeing our town
Where I gifted you crowns

I see all your faces in the clouds
And even through the crowds

Your ups and your downs
Your smiles and your frowns

I hear your laughs,
in my moments of acting like clowns

Those images are bursting my eyeballs and ears, with too many visualized sounds