

Disinterest Shouldn't Insult

A romantic connection is sea deep
You can see clear deep- into the coral reefs
And the beauties below, are translucent

A superficial connection is about as shallow as a beach
You can only see the dirty water knee deep
And the dangers below, are opaque

When it starts, it causes a magnitude of waves
When it ends, it causes a multitude of destruction

When it's not there, you hope to castaway and be eaten by sharks

If you can't see your toes in the water
If you can't feel the calm in the sea
You can't feel the interest
But you most certainly feel the disinterest and you must castaway

There's no telling what you'll feel when you're interested in someone Or when someone is interested in you

Just like there's no telling what you'll feel when you're not interested in someone Or when someone is not interested in you

Disinterest shouldn't insult
Neither is at fault
Emotions are at fault
There either are- or- aren't, any sparks