

The Biggest Rain

The people mocked, the people talked,
As Noah built the ark.
They came to see if it would be,
A new amusement park.

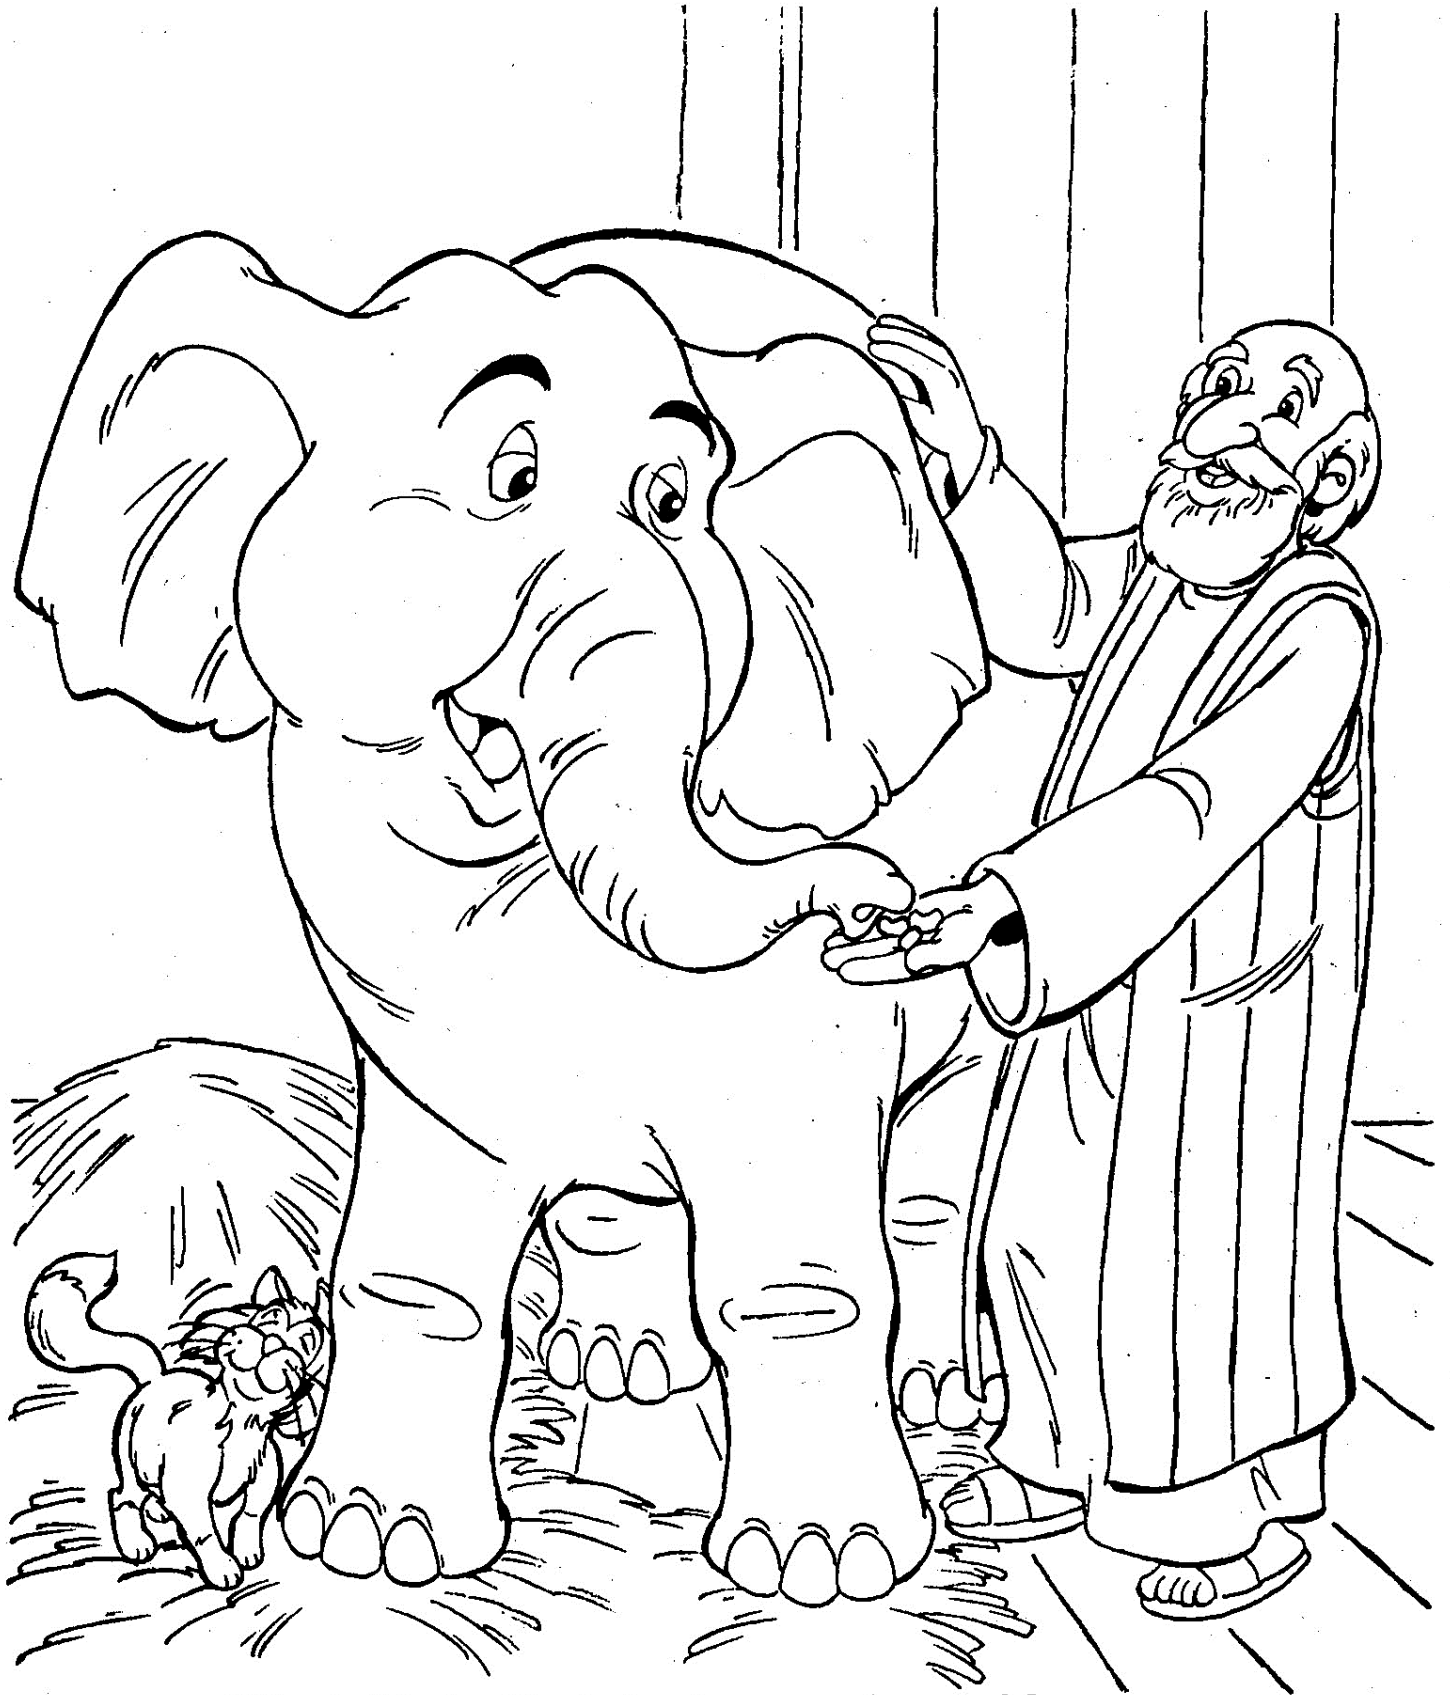

But Noah knew, God's word was true,
And did as God had said.
He warned in vain of coming rain.
They thought he'd lost his head.

Man said, "No, we will not go."
The animals obeyed,
Big and small, and short and tall,
Each species God had made.

Then one day, the sky turned gray.
The rain began to fall,
And Noah's boat began to float,
As water covered all.

His faith in God, had seemed so odd,
But he was safe inside.
For those who mocked, the door was locked.
There was no place to hide.