10 Essentials for a Hassle-Free Float Niobrara National Scenic River

- Every individual must have a PFD (personal floatation device) accessible and all children under 13 must wear one.
- You are responsible for knowing your takeout location. Ask questions of your outfitter before you launch if unsure of the exact pickup location and time. Loading Areas with mile markers are signed along the river.
- A maximum of 10 individual tubes or three giant tubes may be fastened together at any time. No more than 5 canoes/kayaks may be attached together while underway on the river.
- River users are encouraged not to take glass bottles in the river. Visitors have been injured by stepping on broken glass.
- Understand that cell service is limited or nonexistent in many places on the river. Phones are available at campgrounds and outfitters along the river.
- Plan ahead and be prepared. Safeguard valuables in a waterproof container, carry extra food and water, wear sunscreen, have an updated weather forecast, and understand river hazards.
- Carry your ID with you at all times. Underage drinking will not be tolerated and having your ID with you will save time dealing with river rangers if you look under 21.
- Alcohol is not permitted on Fort Niobrara National Wildlife Refuge (from the Cornell Bridge launch site to just west of Berry Bridge and may not be consumed at Brewer Bridge Landing).
- Most of the land along the river is private property. Stay off the banks unless you have permission to be there. Public access areas are signed.
- Pack out your garbage and recyclables. Secure your gear. Dumpsters and recycling stations are located at public access points and outfitter landings. Throwing your garbage into your National Scenic River is an automatic citation from river rangers. This includes cigarette butts.

Respect other river users who are expecting a peaceful float trip. Loud, obnoxious conduct, nudity and harassment of other groups are the best way to gain a river ranger's attention. We want you to enjoy your trip, but please be considerate of others and help us take care of this special place.
