Mantra : 34

Then, amidst chanting, the performer gently blows the red-hot samidh and the fire rises up. Thereafter, ghee is offered and the participants meditate upon Agni. The success of a homa depends upon how the participants relate to the fire god Agni because he serves as the medium between this mortal world and the other mystical worlds. After agni dhyana or meditating on Agni is done, the fire god is decorated by placing flowers on the eight corners of the homekunda amidst chanting. Water is sprinkled on all the four sides of the kunda and thus Agni becomes ready to accept the offerings offered to him.

8. Sankalpam

This is like the heart of the homa. The entire homa depends upon the Sankalpa or the strong will of the participants. Each homa is performed for a definite purpose and every performer and participants clearly hold this purpose within their hearts as they take Sankalpa. The Sankalpa mantra itself is a very clear declaration stating that - in this month, in this season, on this day of the brighter/darker phase of the moon, at a time when this particular constellation is ruling (each day is supposed to be ruled by one of the twenty seven important stellar constellations called Nakshatras), I am performing this particular homa to invoke and please this deity under the guidance of Shri Kalki & Amma for this individual/family, who is/are born under this sign of the zodiac and ruled by this Nakshatra.

9. Pradhan Homa (Main Homa)

Pradhan homa means "the main homa". This is when the main mantra pertaining to the Pradhan Devta or the main deity is chanted 108 times continuously along with the chanting of the Moola mantra or the main mantra, various Ahutis or offerings like nine grains, medicinal herbs, dry fruits, rice cooked in ghee, cooked rice mixed with jaggery, silver flowers, gold flowers, black sesame seeds and various others are offered into the fire. The offerings are never the same and differ from homa to homa because each deity responds to a particular offering. The common offerings for every homa are Samidh and ghee. In the scientific
