

Discovering What's Next

A coaching and development program for professionals who worked on recently defunded federal projects.

Pro bono – no cost.

Designed to help eligible scientists, artists, educators, researchers, scholars and administrators find “their next.”

Offered as a public service by Creating Futures that Work®

for information, please contact hseifter@futuresthatwork.com

Discovering What's Next

A 60-day intensive program to support professionals who formerly worked at or on projects funded by federal agencies for scientific research, artistic creation, education and the advancement of culture and are now in the process of discovering “their next.” There is no cost to participate.

What's in the program?

- 5 sessions with an experienced, accredited and highly qualified executive coach
- Comprehensive assessments: leadership skills, innovation skills, future ready mindsets – all with expert debriefs and actionable recommendations
- Access to the Future Ready Leadership on demand learning system
- Virtual workshops and networking opportunities

Who is eligible?

Artists, scientists, educators, researchers, innovators, scholars and administrators who were formerly employees or grantees of the National Science Foundation, National Institutes of Health, National Endowment for the Arts, National Endowment for the Humanities, Institute of Museum and Library Services, Smithsonian, PBS, NPR, the Kennedy Center, who have recently lost their jobs or grants.

Information

- Summer cohort runs from late July through the end of September
- Dates/times are flexible to accommodate other commitments, travel plans, etc.
- We have seats for up to 30 participants in the summer cohort
- For more info about our team and approach visit www.futuresthatwork.com

Next steps

- If interested, please let us know by July 14 at hseifter@futuresthatwork.com
- Please include a 1-2 sentence description of what you hope to gain from participating in this program.
- Also include basic information about yourself (can be a website, CV, LinkedIn profile, etc.
- Seats will be filled on a first come/first served basis.

About us

Creating Futures that Work (CFTW) is the world's leading training and development company that uses arts-based experiential learning to develop future ready leaders. Harvey Seifter, CFTW co-founder and director, has spent 4 decades leading projects supported by the NSF, NEA, NEH, Smithsonian, PBS and NPR, among others.

