

Dear Guest,

We are honored and privileged that you have taken the time out of your busy holiday schedule to share the evening with us at the Smithsonian National Museum of African American History and Culture. We know that you will find the museum to be a very special place to reflect on the sacrifices and contributions of our African American ancestors.

This is a very special time of the year to be thankful for what God has done for each of us. We should remember the adversities that have led to each of us being able to share this special moment in history together as friends and family. We especially remember the special sacrifice that God himself made for us as we celebrate this season of the birth of his son, Jesus, who became our deliverer.

May this Christmas bring you the peace and joy that you long for in a world that is far less than perfect. Let us enjoy the fellowship with each other and the knowledge of the past that we may increase the abundance of that peace. We have enclosed a list of activities and events, in the area, that you may enjoy if you plan to extend your visit.

Merry Christmas
