Dear Sirs and Madams:

I have known Judy Jenkins for four years; she was my English student her freshman year here at Oscar Smith High School.

In my twenty-two years of experience in teaching I have encountered only a precious few students like this young woman. Her maturity in those earlier times, up to today, has always surprised me; there are people so much older than Judy that have neither her composure or self-confidence.

Judy shows unflagging enthusiasm in every thing I have ever seen her do. I have never seen her in a "bad mood;" I've never seen her low on energy! A more attentive, conscientious student would be very hard to find. I feel certain that these qualities are enduring ones and that they permeate all her relationships.

To a prospective employer I would like to say: "Today is your lucky day!" Judy is alert, dependable, intelligent, courteous, sincere, pleasant, ethical, tactful, kind, and caring. Her character and capabilities will, more than likely, make her indispensable to you.

Sincerely,
Julia Hollandsworth
