

☐

I'm not robot

reCAPTCHA

I'm not robot!

Apa in text citation multiple authors article

Apa in text citation multiple authors. Apa in text citation journal article multiple authors. Apa format in text citation multiple authors. How to do an in text citation for an article with multiple authors apa. Apa style in text citation 2 authors. In text citation apa scholarly article multiple authors.

Home / Guides / Citation Guides / APA Format / How to cite in APA when there are multiple authors Share to Google Classroom This article covers how to cite a reference in APA style (7th ed.) when there are multiple authors. Broadly speaking, in an APA style “the author” refers to the person(s) or group(s) who should be given credit for the work being referenced. Here’s a run-through of everything this page includes: In-text citations when there are multiple authors APA 7th ed. uses the author-date citation system for citing references in text. Unless you are citing a source with no author in APA, the structure in parenthetical citations includes placing the author’s last name/surname, followed by a comma, and the publication year in parentheses. In narrative citations, this information is incorporated into the sentence. Parenthetical citation for one author: (Author Last Name, Year Published) (Curtis, 2020) Narrative citation for one author: Author Last Name (Year Published) Curtis (2020) Two authors For a work with two authors, include both authors’ last names in every in-text citation, whether narrative or parenthetical. In parenthetical citations, use an ampersand (&) between the authors’ last names. Parenthetical citation for two authors: (1st Author & 2nd Author, Year Published) (Curtis & Williams, 2020) Narrative citation for two authors: 1st Author & 2nd Author (Year Published) Curtis & Williams (2020) Three or more authors When citing a journal paper in APA with three or more authors, only enter the last name of the first author listed and add “et al.” after it. “Et al.” is Latin for the phrase “and others,” which is why it is used as a substitute for two or more authors’ last names. Parenthetical citation for three or more authors: (1st Author et al., Year Published) (Harris et al., 2020) Narrative citation for three or more authors: 1st Author et al.

In-text citation examples
Single author	Smith (2012)	Smith (2012)	Smith (2012)	Smith (2012)
In-text paragraph, exclude date?
Two authors	Smith and Jones (2012)	Smith and Jones (2012)	(Smith & Jones, 2012)	(Smith & Jones, 2012)
In-text paragraph, exclude date?
3-5 authors	Smith, Williams, and Jones (2012)	Smith et al. (2012)	(Smith, Williams, & Jones, 2012)	(Smith et al., 2012)
In-text paragraph, exclude date?
6 or more authors	Smith et al. (2012)	Smith et al. (2012)	(Smith et al., 2012)	(Smith et al., 2012)
In-text paragraph, exclude date?
Two authors with same surname	J. Jones (2012)	J. Jones (2012)	(J. Jones, 2012)	(J. Jones, 2012)
In-text paragraph, exclude date?
Two works by same author	Jones (2012)	Jones (2012)	Jones, 2012	Jones, 2012
In-text paragraph, exclude date?
Two works by same author in same year	Jones (2012a)	Jones (2012b)	(Jones, 2012a)	(Jones, 2012b)
In-text paragraph, exclude date?
Different works by same citation	Jones (2012) and Walker (2010)	Jones (2012) and Walker (2010)	(Jones, 2012; Walker, 2010)	(Jones, 2012; Walker, 2010)

*Note: Date can only be included if there are no other works by the same author(s) cited in the paper.

(Year Published) Harris et al. (2020) Here is a page with more information on when to use “et al.” in APA style. Group authors The same guidelines for in-text citations apply when the authors of a source are a distinct group or organization such as a government agency, association, nonprofit organization, business, hospital, task force, or study group. To confirm whether a reference was written by individual author(s) or a group, check the cover or title page. Hint: for an online resource, the author could be the name of the organization hosting the webpage or website, rather than the name of just one content contributor. Before using an abbreviated group name as the author of your citation, spell out the abbreviation and define the group one time first in the text. Afterward, use the abbreviation of the group name throughout the rest of the paper. Group author in-text citation examples: First parenthetical citation with group abbreviation included: (Association of Jesuit Colleges and Universities [AJCU], 2020) Subsequent parenthetical citations: (AJCU, 2020) First narrative citation with group abbreviation included: The Association of Jesuit Colleges and Universities [AJCU] (2020) Subsequent narrative citations: The AJCU (2020) Avoiding ambiguity in in-text citations Sometimes, in-text citations that have three or more authors, some of whom have the same last name, and the same publication year can look like they are the same reference when using the et al. abbreviation. For example, Curtis et al. (2020) could refer to Curtis, Acres, Thomas, Henderson, and Tyler (2020) OR Curtis, Acres, Thomas, Henderson, Maxey, Key, Smith, and Esparza (2020) To avoid this ambiguity and confusion for the reader, write out as many names as possible for the in-text citation until the references are distinguished, and then add “et. al” to abbreviate the other authors’ names. Example: Curtis, Acres, Thomas, Henderson, et al. (2020) OR Curtis, Acres, Thomas, Henderson, Maxey, et al. (2020) When only the final author is different, list all of the names in every citation to avoid any confusion. Example: Curtis, Acres, Thomas, Henderson, and Tyler (2020) Curtis, Acres, Thomas, Henderson, and Esparza (2020) Reference list entries when there are multiple authors APA has slightly different reference structures for different source types (e.g., book, website, journal article, etc.), but each structure generally includes the following: Author last name, Author initials. (Date Published), Title. URL or DOI if available. Need more help with citing a particular source? Find further guidance in this APA citations guide. One or two authors For references with one or two authors, cite using the four-part structure. Two individual authors example: Smith, J., & Jones, S. (1994). Making a movie star. Behind the Scenes Stories: A Journal of Celebrity Life, 44(2), 192-200. One group author example: The American Marine Society.

Pástor & Stambaugh (2002a) blah blah blah
Pástor & Stambaugh (2002b) blah blah blah

References

Pástor, L., & Stambaugh, R. (2002a). Mutual fund performance and seemingly unrelated assets. Journal of Financial Economics, 63(3), 315-349.

Pástor, L., & Stambaugh, R. (2002b). Investing in equity mutual funds. Journal of Financial Economics, 63(3), 351-380.

(2003). Whale mating patterns in the new millennium. The American Marine Society Magazine, 17-20. 2-20 authors In APA 7th ed., up to 20 authors should be included in a reference list entry. Write out the last name and first initial(s) for each contributor. 2-20 authors example: Wright, A., Komal, G., Siddharth, D., Boyd, G., Cayson, N., Beverley, K., Travers, K., Begum, A., Redmond, M., Mills, M., Cherry, D., Finley, B., Fox, M., Ferry, F., Almond, B., Howell, E., Gould, T., Berger, B., Bostock, T., Fountain, A.

(2020). Styling royalty. London Bridge Press. 21+ authors For references with more than 20 authors, after listing the 19th author replace any additional author names with an ellipsis (...) followed by the final listed author’s last name and first initial(s). 21+ authors example: Wright, A., Komal, G., Siddharth, D., Boyd, G., Cayson, N., Beverley, K., Travers, K., Begum, A., Redmond, M., Mills, M., Cherry, D., Finley, B., Fox, M., Ferry, F., Almond, B., Howell, E., Gould, T., Berger, B., Bostock, T., . .

APA IN-TEXT CITATIONS

One Work by Multiple authors (3-5 authors) (p.208)

Reference in the text:

Skinner, Cornell, Sun, and Harlow, 1993 did a survey on ... (Use as 1st citation in text)

Skinner et al. (1993) found ... (Use as subsequent 1st citation per paragraph thereafter)

Skinner et al. also found ... (Omit year from subsequent citations after 1st citation within a paragraph)

• et al means "and others"

References (at the end of your paper)

Skinner, M. E., Cornell, R. C., Sun, K. F., & Harlow, R. P. (1993).

Small group learning, Psychological Bulletin, 26, 57-63.

Booker, T. (2020). Eating well: Tips from 23 lifestyle authors. Food Magazine, Troubleshooting Solution #1: How to order the names of multiple authors in an APA reference Authors should be cited in the exact order that they are listed by the source, even if they have not been listed alphabetically. Solution #2: How to cite an article with more than 20 authors in APA style If an article has more than 20 authors, all authors do not need to be listed in the reference. Instead, name the first 19, then use an ellipsis (...), then add the name of the final author listed. The ellipsis acts as a substitute for all the names between the first 19 and the final authors. No ampersand (&) is needed before the final name. For example: Richards, B.A., Lillcrap, T. P., Beaudoin, P., Bengio, Y., Bogacz, R., Christensen, A., Clopath, C. Costa, R. P., de Berker, A., Ganguli, S., Gillon, C. J., Hafner, D., Kepecs, A., Kriegeskorte, N., Latham, P., Lindsay, G. W., Miller, K. D., Naud, R., Pack, C. C., ... Kording, K. P. (2019). A deep learning framework for neuroscience. Nature Neuroscience, 22(11), 1761-1770. When making an in-text citation, only write the first author’s last name followed by “et. al.” This applies to both parenthetical and narrative citations. For example: (Richard et al., 2019) Richard et al. (2019) Solution #3: How to cite an article written by an organization in APA style When an article is written by an organization, use the typical four-part APA structure (author, date, title, publisher) and cite the organization as the author. For example: American Nurses Association. (2019). 2018 Annual Report, American Nurse Today, 14(6), 29-36. 49d621/globalassets/docs/ana/ana-annual-report-for- 2018.pdf Organization as author and publisher If the organization that authored an article is also its publisher, omit the publisher’s name in the citation. In-text citation when an organization is an author Use the organization’s name as the author. For example: American Nurses Association [ANA] (2019) If an organization’s name is long, abbreviate it by doing the following: First, write the organization’s name in full the first time, followed by the abbreviation in parenthesis. After this, you may use the abbreviation without including the complete name. For example: 1st in-text narrative citation: American Nurses Association [ANA] (2019) 1st in-text parenthetical citation: (American Nurses Association [ANA] (2019) After this distinction is made, abbreviations in-text can be used as demonstrated below: Narrative citations: The ANA (2019) Parenthetical citations: (ANA, 2019) Published October 28, 2020. How do I cite a source with multiple authors and editions in APA style? To cite a source with multiple authors and an edition number in APA style, you need to know the names of the authors, title of the book, edition number, and publisher. The in-text citation of a book with multiple authors and an edition number is similar to citing a journal or a book reference with multiple authors. An example of a book reference with three authors and an edition number, along with a template, is given below: In-text citation template and example: Narrative Author Surname et al. (Publication Year) LeBuffe et al. (2012) Parenthetical (Author Surname et al., Publication Year) (LeBuffe et al., 2012) Reference list entry template and example: Author Surname, F. M., Author Surname, F. M., & Author Surname, F. M. (Publication Year). Book title (edition number). Publisher LeBuffe, P. A., Naglieri, J. A., & Manders, A. (2012). Devereux early childhood assessment for preschoolers (2nd ed.). Kaplan Early Learning Company. Use numerals to indicate an edition number. The word “edition” is abbreviated as “ed.” Italicize the book title and follow sentence case for capitalization. How do I cite a source that has multiple authors with the same last names and initials in APA style? Citing a source that has multiple authors with the same last name and same initials is the same as citing a source with different authors.

There is no need to add the initials of the authors in in-text citations as all surnames (although the same) appear in a single source. Examples of a book reference with three authors with the same last name and initials and their templates are given below: In-text citation template and example: Narrative Author Surname et al. (Publication Year) Dunn et al. (2007) Parenthetical (Author Surname et al., Publication Year) (Dunn et al., 2007) Reference list entry template and example: Author Surname, F. & Author Surname, F. (Publication Year). Book title. Publisher. Dunn, L. M., Dunn, L. M., & Dunn, L. M. (2007). Peabody picture vocabulary test-IV. American Guidance Service. An in-text citation is a short acknowledgement you include whenever you quote or take information from a source in academic writing. It points the reader to the source so they can see where you got your information. In-text citations most commonly take the form of short parenthetical statements indicating the author and publication year of the source, as well as the page number if relevant. Example: APA Style in-text citation(Jackson, 2005, p. 16) We also offer a free citation generator and in-depth guides to the main citation styles. Generate accurate citations with Scribbr Go to APA examplesGo to MLA examplesGo to Chicago examples What are in-text citations for? The point of an in-text citation is to show your reader where your information comes from. Including citations: Avoids plagiarism by acknowledging the original author’s contribution Allows readers to verify your claims and do follow-up research Shows you are engaging with the literature of your field Academic writing is seen as an ongoing conversation among scholars, both within and between fields of study. Showing exactly how your own research draws on and interacts with existing sources is essential to keeping this conversation going. When do you need an in-text citation? An in-text citation should be included whenever you quote or paraphrase a source in your text. Quoting means including the original author’s words directly in your text, usually introduced by a signal phrase. Quotes should always be cited (and indicated with quotation marks), and you should include a page number indicating where in the source the quote can be found. Example: Quote with APA Style in-text citation Evolution is a gradual process that “can act only by very short and slow steps” (Darwin, 1859, p. 510). Paraphrasing means putting information from a source into your own words. In-text citations are just as important here as with quotes, to avoid the impression you’re taking credit for someone else’s ideas. Include page numbers where possible, to show where the information can be found. Example: Paraphrase with APA Style in-text citationThe evolutionary process consists of a series of incremental changes over a long period of time (Darwin, 1859, p. 510). However, to avoid over-citation, bear in mind that some information is considered common knowledge and doesn’t need to be cited. For example, you don’t need a citation to prove that Paris is the capital city of France, and including one would be distracting. Types of in-text citation Different types of in-text citation are used in different citation styles. They always direct the reader to a reference list giving more complete information on each source. Author-date citations (used in APA, Harvard, and Chicago author-date) include the author’s last name, the year of publication, and a page number when available. Author-page citations (used in MLA) are the same except that the year is not included. Both types are divided into parenthetical and narrative citations. In a parenthetical citation, the author’s name appears in parentheses along with the rest of the information. In a narrative citation, the author’s name appears as part of your sentence, not in parentheses.

Examples of different types of in-text citation Parenthetical citation Narrative citation Author-date (APA) The treatment proved highly effective (Smith, 2018, p. 11). Smith states that the treatment was highly effective (2018, p. 11). Author-page (MLA) The treatment proved highly effective (Smith 11). Smith states that the treatment was highly effective (11). Note: Footnote citations like those used in Chicago notes and bibliography are sometimes also referred to as in-text citations, but the citation itself appears in a note separate from the text. Frequently asked questions about in-text citations What is an in-text citation? An in-text citation is an acknowledgement you include in your text whenever you quote or paraphrase a source. It usually gives the author’s last name, the year of publication, and the page number of the relevant text. In-text citations allow the reader to look up the full source information in your reference list and see your sources for themselves. Which citation style should I use? Check if your university or course guidelines specify which citation style to use. If the choice is left up to you, consider which style is most commonly used in your field. Other more specialized styles exist for certain fields, such as Bluebook and OSCOLA for law. The most important thing is to choose one style and use it consistently throughout your text. If you want to cite this source, you can copy and paste the citation or click the “Cite this Scribbr article” button to automatically add the citation to our free Citation Generator. Caulfield, J. (2022, August 23). The Basics of In-Text Citation | APA & MLA Examples. Scribbr. Retrieved July 19, 2023, from