DON'T FORGET TO VOTE ON TUESDAY NOVEMBER 3rd!!!

It is not enough for the word to fall “on good ground.” The reasons why the sowing did not bear fruit in the other instances show the conditions that are necessary for true spiritual life. We must not stand at the roadside within range of passers-by; a certain withdrawal from the world, a certain silence, a certain contemplation (which vary in each case, but are necessary in ALL cases without exception) will protect what has been divinely sown. The ground on which the seed falls must have moisture in it, it must be frequently and regularly watered; this means that we must have constant and regular recourse to prayer and to other sources of grace, without depending on moments of emotion or “inspiration.” Generally speaking, we may know that the seed grows if it falls on “good ground,” but we may not see precisely and concretely enough the conditions set out in the gospel for its germination.
