Introducing, the official first ever release of another all-original album by Tom Carlile: God Is Calling

The history of this album goes back to Tom's multi-year residency in Las Vegas. After opening the brand new state-of-the-art showroom at Vegas World, now known as The Stratosphere, Tom befriended a couple who frequented his shows night after night. Allen and Trudy were so moved by his powerful vocals, they felt he would sound great singing Christian or Gospel music. Though Tom often performed all styles of music throughout his career, including religious, he was intrigued by their enthusiasm. Further talking, it turned out Allen was a Pastor at a local church and invited Tom to come by. After visiting their church they called "The Garden," Tom was inspired to write a theme song for their congregation. Many conversations ensued about religious stories and their teachings, which led to the first song "In The Garden," written in one short afternoon. When he gets on a roll writing, he is hard to stop! Nine songs later, Tom had a whole album's quantity of music. He took his entire band into a Las Vegas recording studio, including his son featured on bass guitar, and recorded these new original songs.

Available now on over 150 streaming services worldwide, this ten-song collection represents the recording session inspired by an unexpected friendship and a little church.
