Introducing, the first official release of the all original album by Tom Carlile:
Hunger Deep Inside

After completing his Las Vegas Residency in 1989 at the Las Vegas areas top showroom inside Vegas World (now known as the Stratosphere) Tom returned home for his next challenge. Fresh with several newly written original songs he recruited some old friends to record these tracks. With the creative inspiration overflowing Tom ended up singing the lead vocals, background harmonies, all guitars, and bass on these tracks with long time friend Bill on drums and Duke engineering the recording. With eight dynamic songs along with two previously recorded tracks these ten songs made up an all new album that was meant to be sent to record companies for an official release. Waiting for a record release this new trio ended up touring steadily in the South for several years as a very successful act highlighting all the popular songs of the day. The album never had an official release at the time but was "waiting in the wings" for the right opportunity. With the advent of the internet and digital music It was long thought that the original multi track tapes from the recording session were lost which would be paramount in producing a final product that would be suitable to master these recordings for todays listening requirements. A recent unexpected discovery of this multi track reel of the session turned out to be a virtual treasure trove allowing these fantastic original songs be brought to life in an all new modern mix.
