

Don't Let a Dupont Spinoff Destroy All These Trees

422 acres of woods that are mostly in Bridgeport are threatened by development. Dupont owned the area and then gave it to a company that is legally separate.

Mature trees keep carbon out of the atmosphere. We desperately need that to keep CO2 out of the air if we're to avoid going over climate tipping points in 2030.

There's plenty of other empty space in Bridgeport that is currently the hulks of old factories or other derelict buildings. Offices can be built there.

Trees clean the area of pollutants. They provide shade for animals, including humans.

Paths can be built between trees to allow the public access to a delightful green space.

This flyer created by Promoting Enduring Peace PEPeace.org

For more information, to sign a petition and to get involved in the campaign go to:

PreserveRemingtonWoods.com