

ATHLETIC TRAINERS

Andrea Davis and Demetre Ledlum are the certified athletic trainers proudly serving North Atlanta High School through Children's Healthcare of Atlanta. Andrea is entering her 13th year as an AT and her second year at North Atlanta. She earned her bachelor's degree in Athletic Training from the University of North Georgia and her master's in Leadership from Shorter University. Originally from Rome, Georgia, Andrea brings extensive experience working with professional and collegiate athletes — and when she's not on the sidelines, you'll find her hanging out with her dog, Opie.

Demetre Ledlum is entering his sixth year as an AT and his fourth year at North Atlanta. Before pursuing athletic training, Demetre proudly served in the United States Marine Corps. He earned his undergraduate degree from Georgia Gwinnett College and completed his master's in Athletic Training at Life University. Demetre is originally from Gwinnett County.

As athletic trainers, their main role is to keep student athletes safe, healthy, and prepared — through injury prevention, emergency care, rehabilitation, and recovery. This year, they're excited to offer several unique opportunities for our Dubs, including "More Than An Athlete" week, a student athletic training aide program, and many more initiatives focused on athlete wellness and growth.
