

American Classical Academy
St. Cloud, Florida
Principal Candidate

American Classical Charter Academy is looking for its founding Principal to begin the 2019-20 school year. If you are selected for the interview process, you will be contacted soon as hiring is currently under way.

America's prosperity depends upon a certain type of education, one that views humans as more than workers in a 21st century global economy. A classical education aims to develop citizens with virtue and knowledge in order to preserve liberty and self-government like the American founders intended. The ACCA Principal must understand the difference between this type of education and modern pedagogy.

ACCA's Principal will be accountable to a founding Board of Directors and given guidance from CCMG. The Principal will be responsible for implementing a classical education to students in grades K-8 at American Classical Charter Academy in St. Cloud, Florida. Knowledge of classical education and traditional teaching methods is required. In addition, the Principal will also be responsible for establishing and maintaining a strong school culture; ensuring financial integrity; and communicating the mission of ACCA among the parent base and surrounding community.

Preferred Principal candidates will have a master's degree, teaching and leadership experience, and strong writing and speaking skills. A classical education during these modern times is countercultural and challenging; therefore, courage and love of country are also required of the ACCA Principal.

The mission of American Classical Charter Academy is to develop within its students a foundation of virtue and knowledge by delivering a rigorous, classical, liberal arts education with a strong emphasis on the rights and duties of American citizenship.
